FINAL HARVEST: Bumper crop of artichokes is being harvested at the Odello artichoke ranch on Highway 1 near the Carmel River. The Pine Cone learned this week that plans for the development of the 292-acre ranch, which straddles both sides of the highway, were being finalized by City Redevelopment Co. of Los Angeles, and an announcement would be made in the next few weeks. The view is from Highway 1 looking west to the bay. The Carmel Meadows subdivision can be seen in upper left. (Photo by George T.C. Smith).

Letters to the Editor

Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, please write only enough material to adequately cover the subject. Anonymous letters are not acceptable, although names may be withheld on request.

Pine Cone Editor:

Today, we walked as usual past Carmel's Devendorf Plaza. It has never looked more beautiful. But more so, because there were young and old sharing the beauty of the park and enjoying a legal rest on the grass.

Carmel is not only for the elderly. Mrs. Parr is to be commended for defending the youth of today. They are the hope for the future and certainly should not all be considered undesirable and unsanitary'.

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone:

Some communities are victims of progress. Carmel happens to be a victim of unprogress. It is better, of course, to be an unprogress victim than a progress victim, because even the disaster of having "hippies" occupying space in a seated position on a city park lawn is not as bad as factory smoke and freeways crisscrossing the city at Ocean and Dolores.

Unfortunately, the same unprogress that keeps Carmel quaint -- the trees blocking traffic in the middle of the streets, and the already dim street lamps hidden in the trees to confuse lost tourists at night, and the lack of house numbers to confuse them in the daytime -- these things are as enticing to artistic-minded "hippies" as they are to regular Carmellians.

Happily, there are some possible solutions to the problem:

1. Regular Carmellians could en masse adopt hippie-type dress and habits, which might force present "hippies" to adopt regular habits (working, etc.) and clothing, rather than conform.

2. Industry could be encouraged to locate factories in Carmel.

3. A replica of Devendorf Plaza could be built several miles from Carmel and equipped with a steam heated lawn.

4. Charge five dollars per hour to sit on the lawn. While not being "discriminatory under the law" this might restrict lawn sitting to more desirable types, since anyone willing to pay to sit on said lawn will probably not even ask the price when renting a motel room.

I frankly recommend No. 4. To the best of my knowledge the Supreme Court has not struck down what might be considered discriminatory charges for pay booths in rest rooms, so it may be the answer.

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone,

The Carmel City Council has taken steps to withdraw the Carmel City Library from the County Library. Unless a special tax area is created by our County Board of Supervisors it will be done. The reason for this proposal is to equalize the tax burden among all areas that are using the Carmel Library rather than all of the burden being carried by just the taxpayers within the city limits.

The result of disaffiliating with the County would mean: (1) a loss of 28,000 books, (2) cut back in book buying power by two-thirds each year, (3) and no access for those who live outside the city limits.

Besides losing County services we could not stay in the Monterey Bay Area Cooperative Library System (MOBAC) if our doors were closed to county borrowers. MOBAC is a cooperative library system which includes seven public libraries in the Monterey Bay area which under this system provides us with many beneficial services such as: freedom of assess, rapid interchange of books among the seven member libraries, reference and information service, and more books and other materials (8 mm films and projector and an art service).

If we drop out of the County, we will also have to withdraw from MOBAC and lose the many new services we were just beginning to enjoy. It is our hope that the Board of Supervisors will carefully consider creating a Library Area Tax.

Editor,

Re The Pine Cone, Jan. 14, 1971:

"Falge then asked rate to prepare an estimate on the cost of planter boxes in place of larger trees."

The "tree" situation in Carmel remains a serious one. We cannot accept such a compromise as suggested by Mr. Falge. Planter boxes on Dolores St. are definately out and not acceptable to tree & forest loving citizens of Carmel. We will not stand by while Carmel loses its Urban forest, and insidiously becomes a city of cement or asphalt, straight streets, and token trees planted down a straight, ugly curb line.

Let it be understood that City Forester Tate never proposed anything resembling "planter boxes". Mr. Tate proposed large trees for Dolores St. -- never smaller trees in "planter boxes". Carmel hired a forester to maintain and improve our forest -- can anyone support the "planter box" concept who truly wants to maintain a forest atmosphere? We would be prudent to support all efforts which would enhance a "forest" concept. I submit we listen to our city forester in this Dolores St. matter.

Sad isn't it that farsighted Carmelites who routed streets around trees in an effort to preserve a forests natural, asymmetric balance can't be here now to fight against "planter boxes."

Sad isn't it that Carmelites seem apathetic in allowing a suggestion of "planter boxes", -- why, such a suggestion should be shouted down with all the fervor of another Mobil gas station!

Dear Editor:

I don't think that the trees that are going to be planted on Dolores St. should be planted in planters.

We just moved here and we would like to see Carmel keep its natural beauty.

Dear Editor:

As a visitor from Brazil I am somewhat perplexed re the furore over 7½ acres of what may be tract homes. Perhaps I miss the point.

However, there is another fact the point of which I do not miss: Carmel's docile acceptance of all these snorting scooters and motorcycles. After all, your village is—or should be—a haven. Havens are presumed to be quiet. Carmel is noisy—so it's not as advertised. One can find noise anywhere.

I may be very innocent, but would it be impossible not, of course, to outlaw scooters—one has a perfect right to ride what he pleases—but to outlaw noisy vehicles? Could this ever be effected—and hence a night's sleep guaranteed—visitors would return. Eventually, the hotels and motels will suffer, since people like me will next time avoid noisy villages. The economics are not too encouraging. The few will drive away the many.

Only in Carmel...

IF YOU can't come into the Pine Cone building the next time you're in the neighborhood – smile or wave or blow us a kiss. We've been painted! At last.

Even the painter, and the passersby while he was at work, were Carmelish. Two European-born sisters who walk to the Post Office every day commented, "We noticed him washing down the building, then scraping the old paint smooth. You hardly see work like that any more."

SIGN SEEN: "Support your local police. Bribe a cop today."

A 12-YEAR-OLD girl was allowed to miss school in order to witness the Crosby tee-off, first day. Her interest, not golf, but collecting autographs. Her parents patiently trailed her while she bagged a dozen celebrity signatures.

Then she spotted the Young Maiden's Dream – Dean Martin's 17-year-old son who was caddying for his dad. When she asked breathlessly for his autograph, he was flustered.

"Gee, my hands are full. What'll I do?" Then inspiration struck. He thrust a hand into his pocket. "Here's one of my father's golf balls!"

The young lady hardly lets go of the ball. Won't let anyone else touch it, either. Might get germs on it!

IT HAPPENED AGAIN! That 70-degree weather last week (people called it "June in January" – except that Carmel isn't like that in June!) lured several Village cherry trees and some spring bulbs into bloom. Now if they're just tough enough to survive the real January ...

CARMELITES MUST be born, not made. A shopkeeper who has only been here a matter of months was noted perched on a stepstool outside the mama-papa store she and her husband operate. She basked in the sunshine while her husband frantically took care of all the customers.

the mayor's report

By BARNEY LAIOLO

IN LAST WEEK'S letter to you I mentioned I would inform you of my two visits to San Francisco and discussions with the Post Office Department and the owner of some land which hopefully would become a part of our Green Belt acquisition.

Regarding the Post Office situation, I was informed that the request for a new building at San Carlos and 8th has been forwarded to Washington and is presently in the hands of the appropriate committee. This group is charged with making decisions on new and remodeled structures and also setting up a program of priorities. After priorities have been settled the finance division sets up the machinery for construction. I was informed that we should have an answer sometime between mid-February and March. It is my hope that all will proceed satisfactorily and we soon will know the outcome.

Also, I was informed that the new system under which the Post Office operates has changed the procedure for the appointments of postmasters and staff personnel. This is now done by a special committee rather than through the Washington appointment system. The way I hear it, part of the consideration is based on term of service, outstanding ability and participation in the Civil Service.

REGARDING THE GREEN BELT property, I will report that this entailed a 2½ hour discussion covering all aspects of the land and what this would develop into if the acquisition is completed. I might add this was a most cordial and informative session. If all works well, Carmel can be proud of this beautiful piece of property.

WORK IS CONTINUING at Sunset to improve some of the problems that have been of concern to users. At present the rearrangement of the lights that focus on the stage are being reworked to eliminate the necessity for exceptionally long ladders which are needed for focusing and re-lamping. I'm sorry that the symphony musicians and Mr. Taeuber were put to this inconvenience.

I'm also sorry about the lack of heat on the night of the Peninsula Chamber Music Society concert and will personally follow through on these problems.

It is my observation that Mr. Riley is doing his very best to handle the numerous problems confronting him and I am certain that given a little time all will be well. Most of the problems were not of his making but were acquired by him when he took over as manager in January. He has enough know-how and background in this field and I know he will do his best to correct the situation.

xxx

At this writing I have no idea of how many will appear at the hearing of the library problem. I can only say again that interested people attend the meetings and become informed and voice their opinions. By these appearances the public can be informed of the extent of the problems and discussion of possible solutions.

xxx

In closing, let me assure you of my displeasure of the Supreme Court's ruling regarding sitting on the grass. I am sure you will agree our park has never looked more beautiful. You can be sure that we have not seen the end of this problem yet.

There are none so deaf as those who do not wish to hear.

xxx

P.S. One of the most difficult jobs a mayor faces is the appointment of the most suitable people to various commissions. Among our residents are many who have had past experience in many of the functions relative to city business. I would appreciate names and addresses and past records of anyone who feels he or she could give of their time and knowledge to help build a reserve list of names for future reference. This is your City—why not help keep it like you think it should be?

Dear Sir:

We are attempting to locate a Mrs. Fern Haggen Mueh of Box 2222, Carmel, California. This was her last known address as of 1964. She was formerly a teacher of the deaf in Madison, Wisconsin in the 1930's. The reason for locating her is the school reunion. Is it possible to have a little item asking your readers if they know whereabouts of Mrs. Mueh.

I would appreciate any help you can give me.

Thank you very much.

Property owners score Branson on lower Valley rezoning

The hottest subject discussed at last Thursday's annual general membership meeting of the Carmel Valley Property Owner's Association turned out to be one not listed on the published agenda.

The evening had been planned around four topics – the conservation of Carmel River, the hillside zoning ordinance, fire protection for the mid-Valley and redistricting proposals.

But it was the Board of Supervisor's recent decision to rezone 7½ acres at the intersection of Val Verde Drive and Carmel Valley Road for a density of 6 units per acre that provoked the loudest exchange of the evening.

Taking the brunt of the criticism was Supervisor Willard Branson, who had been invited to the CVPOA to discuss redistricting and fire protection.

Nettled by what he considered unfair newspaper coverage of his views (see related story on Page 3), Branson arrived prepared with a chronological history of the nine hearings on the Val Verde rezoning and the full text of his statement before the Board of Supervisors.

Branson contended that at four of the nine hearings there had been no opposition to the proposed increase in density from one to six units per acre.

He noted that the Planning Commission twice recommended the six unit per acre density for the area and that he felt it was "very proper" to endorse the change when there appeared to be very little opposition to it.

"That's the way it really is," he said tersely.

Several members of the audience rose to challenge Branson's arguments. Joe Broadman, who owns property on Val Verde, retorted that the Rancho Rio Vista and Carmel Knolls property owners, the CVPOA, the Carmel Citizen's Association and many residents along Val Verde had spoken out or written letters opposing a zoning change.

He said that when the supervisors last August voted 5 to 0 to reject a six unit density and sent the whole matter back to the Planning Commission for further study "we all thought we had the matter licked. So maybe we didn't go back to more hearings. We didn't think it was necessary."

Branson responded by saying that at the last supervisor's meeting, property owners representing more than 45 acres along Val Verde spoke in favor of the higher density.

NO MORE HEARINGS

Kenneth McGinnis of Rancho Rio Vista asked Branson if he would consider reopening hearings on the matter.

"No," the supervisor replied, "It has already had more hearings than any zoning request I know of."

Persisting in his questioning, McGinnis then asked Branson whether or not he had made application to build garden apartments on property on Val Verde Drive in 1962 or 1963.

"Yes."

"Whose land was it?"

"McCauley land. Mrs. Elizabeth McCauley Stock land," Branson replied.

Visibly angered by what he regarded as an attempt to link his wife's family with development plans for the Val Verde area, Branson shot back that the Rancho Canada golf course was his contribution to the Valley's beautification.

"We put 256 acres in golf courses ... my wife's family alone could have put in over 100 houses ... If it wasn't for the Hatton family you wouldn't be living there ...

"I'll not be questioned about my conduct in government ... the minute you get into my family's affairs and my personality you're getting into trouble."

At that point Planning Commissioner Edward Marcucci stepped forward to explain the commission's position.

He noted that the Val Verde property has the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center to the west, the Middle School and golf courses to the east and the Riverwood project with eight units per acre to the southwest.

"Realistically, the Val Verde property can hardly be called a buffer zone," Marcucci said. It is surrounded by quasi-commercial uses. The fear that properties east of the golf course may be treated in the same manner are unfounded and a maximum effort will be made at all times to maintain and preserve the integrity of the one acre zoning beyond this point."

He added that making such a "big hassle" over the property is "unrealistic".

Russell Stolfi of Tierra Grande told Branson he didn't understand how the supervisor could move for the six unit density in the face of opposition from many residents in the area.

"I related to you how many meetings there were with no opposition," Branson answered. "All of a sudden there is a lot of opposition. Maybe someone went out and amassed a lot of signatures ...

"Surely it occurs to you that people sign petitions without amassing all the facts ... With all of these meetings, where were all these people? They had ample time to turn out and they didn't do it."

REDISTRICTING

Earlier in the evening, Branson outlined the problems facing the board of supervisors in trying to draw up five districts with a roughly equal population of 50,000 each.

He repeated his earlier statements, which have been quoted at length in the Outlook, that the Valley would be better off if it were split between two supervisors.

"It is easier for two supervisors to go to Salinas and pick up one vote than for one supervisor to pick up two," Branson explained.

Branson said that another reason he favored pitting the Valley east of Valley Greens Drive into the fourth district was his desire "to lay off some of the rural casework load, not that I have anything against Carmel Valley."

Branson noted that since each supervisor is entitled to name two persons to the Planning Commission, the Valley might pick up a second planning commissioner if it had two supervisors.

George Lockwood said he thinks the Valley has always had a continuity of interest "topographically, zoning-wise ... it has always had a community of interest. It has one road, one river ..."

"That's what Monterey tells me," Branson answered with a smile. "They say there's no upper and lower Monterey ... It's a matter of whose ox is being gored."

Branson declined to predict how the final district boundaries will be drawn when the supervisors receive the final census figures. As things stand now, the supervisors by a 3-2 vote have approved a general proposal which would split Monterey between Branson and Supervisor Loren Smith, but would keep Carmel Valley intact as part of Branson's fifth district.

Still another suggestion was made by William Brown, who observed that if the Valey were going to be split, it would be more logical to do it at Robinson Canyon Road, since property to the west of Robinson Canyon already has a Carmel address and phone number.

Text of Branson's statement

The following is the complete text of a statement Supervisor Willard Branson made before the County Board of Supervisors on January 12.

This statement was made prior to the board's decision, on a 3-2 vote to rezone 7½ acres at Val Verde and Carmel Valley Road for a density of six units per acre.

Supervisor Branson later said he felt news stores misrepresented his views because part of his comments on establishing precedent were quoted out of context.

This was Supervisor Branson's prepared statement:

"You know, Edward Banfield, Professor of Urban Government at Harvard University, is a wise man. In his book "The Unheavenly City" he states that we should go along quietly doing the possible instead of stating in crisis tones that we are guilty of immorality for failing to do the impossible.

"We elected representative do try to quietly go along doing the possible one day at a time. In order to do this we must make decisions based upon as much factual evidence that there is - either - an inversion layer or a highly potential smog problem over and facing Carmel Valley. As a resident of this area for many years I can only attest to a rigorous breeze coming up the Valley from the ocean most of the days of the year.

"The burden of our decisions in matters envolving our environment demands help and advice from the enlightened citizens who can provide this factual information.

"It would be a great pity if our present ecology awareness and movement should suffer from "fractionation" a process which would and as a matter of fact has already seen many groups moving into the field of environment all of whom do not necessarily have the right answers. Another area of concern is whether or not the general public and its representatives will continue to respond rapidly to every claim of harm or possible future harm to our environment. We cannot expect people to face a crisis-a-day and not have the genuine crisis which meets us lose its value.

"People must go on living, building homes, earning a living and enjoying the fruits of their labours. If we take this away from ourselves we will indeed become a listless, melancholic society.

"The issue of precedent has been raised and we should first acknowledge the fact that a precedent in itself is not bad. Witness the precedent which was set when the members of this board, sitting on the Bi-County Air Pollution Control District established a far reaching precedent, through implementation of the most stringent air pollution control regulations in the state. If we grant this application today we do establish a precedent -- as did man when the first house was built. This can not be denied. On the other hand, should the application be denied for the reasons we have heard possibly a much more dangerous precedent will be evolved: That of denying a man the rights which go with the ownership of his property without any obvious imminent threat to the public welfare, which I feel is the issue today."

As a member of our society who devotes countless hours to the cause of protecting our environment I can appreciate your concern, your honesty and your efforts and we wish to thank you for them. My response to you is usually positive and rapid. Today however I do not feel the case has been made. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, in view of the evidence presented today, which includes the fact that this matter has had two full hearings before the Planning Commission, the most recent of which carried a unanimous vote in favor of the density, and in view of the fact that it has had one hearing before the board which comprises with this hearing four full public hearings, I move that this property be reclassified to a density of 5.5 dwelling units per acre. "

Thank You.

Diplomats to attend French Film Festival here

FAMED FILM STAR Marie-Jose Nat, wife of French film maker Michel Drach, will star in "Elise ou la Vraie Vie," one of the bonus films to be shown during the French Film Festival in Carmel Feb. 9, 10 and 11.

"Ramparts of Clay," one of the films to be featured in the French Film Festival in Carmel Feb. 9-11, will have its United States premiere Feb. 7 in New York City. Early the next morning, the film's director, Jean-Louise Bertucelli will carry the film with him via plane to the Peninsula for the first showing outside of New York City.

Mrs. Jerome Carlson, president of the Alliance Francaise, the organization sponsoring the festival, said that she has been besieged with ticket requests for the festival since the first announcement was made last week.

Six French-language films, with English subtitles, all made by France's leading film makers, will be featured during the festival to be held at Carmel's Village Theatre. Matinees and evening performances will be held each of the three days of the festival.

Jean-Herve Donnard, who holds the title of Conseiller Culturel for the French Embassy, and who is France's highest officer in this nation for cultural affairs, will be in Carmel Feb. 11 with his wife. Forum on education sparks lively debate

"We lack a humanizing factor in our schools"—Robert Beck; Seaside teacher.

"I could throw out every year of school I've had 'til now as being worthless"—a local high school girl.

These were among the provocative statements made last Thursday evening at the Thunderbird Book Store in Carmel Valley during an exciting audience participation forum on the topic, "Schooling for What?"

Led by Dr. Don H. Parker, educational psychologist and author from Big Sur, the open forum was motivated by the responses of a panel of five to the questions, "How will the revolutionary forces abroad in the land affect you? What is the connection between schooling and revolution?"

Guest panelists included Dr. Henry Hutchins, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary education for the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District; Robert Beck, a teacher of the educationally handicapped in Seaside; Jane Miller, a senior at Carmel High School; Mark Ruble, a senior at Pacific Grove High School; and Bonnie Gartshore, associate editor of The Observer, a Catholic weekly newspaper.

Most panel members spoke out against competition as fostered in the public schools.

Said Mr. Beck: "Competition starts in the third grade. You can really see the kids change when we start measuring them.

"There is too much competition," he continued. "The kids get tired of losing and quit struggling."

An opposing view was offered by Mark Ruble, who is attending high school, Monterey Peninsula College and the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies this year. Mr. Ruble felt that he responded to the stimulus of competition and was never harmed by it. He said that competition for him had never been a personal attack against his fellow students, but rather competition against his own limitations.

At this point, began to interrupt the panelists' comments. Dr. Parker recognized them in turn.

One young girl arose and said she could throw out every year of school she had as worthless.

"We should teach respect for man as part of the whole scheme of Nature—to live in harmony with everything and to teach the joy of the beauty and the aesthetics of every living thing," she said. Her comment drew spontaneous applause from the audience.

Dr. Hutchins caused considerable laughter by responding "In the Box" and "Out of the Box," as a superintendent of schools and as a private citizen.

"The whole system has to be junked," he said speaking "Out of the Box." "We must move away from schooling based on economics toward fostering man's humanity to man."

Dr. Hutchins suggested that taxpayers must pay more attention to the people they elect to local school boards and the state legislature to upgrade the quality of our schools.

The audience was particularly interested in an issue involving experimental open schools in Monterey. Open schools are those in which parents are free to choose the school their children will attend; different schools will specialize in the humanities, arts and crafts, science and math, etc.

Mr. Beck, who is instrumental in urging the adoption of this experimental system, asked interested persons to write [illegible] District urging its implementation.

Audience and panel responses ranged from criticism of curricula, grades and corporate influences on education to teaching ecological awareness and treating each student as an individual.

The audience reacted enthusiastically when asked if they would like to have more forums and Dr. Hutchins stated that he sees the "Schooling for What?" forum as a means to combat public apathy toward education on the Peninsula.

Many people indicated [illegible] would like to appear as panel members at future forums.

Dr. Parker, who is the author of a recently published book entitled Schooling for What?, said he was very pleased with the first forum and was going ahead with plans for five more to be held at various Peninsula locations.

The second forum will take place tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Thunderbird Book Store on Carmel Valley Road, three miles east of Highway 1. The public is invited and Dr. Parker urges high school and college students to attend. Admission is free.

New Clam Box owner promises continuity

Clyde Herr is the new chef-owner of the Clam Box restaurant on Mission near Fifth.

He and his wife, Geneive, who acts as hostess, took over the operation of the popular restaurant Jan. 1 from the previous owners, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Morgenegg and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Canel, who owned it for seven years. The restaurant was opened 10 years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Motta.

Morgenegg,incidentally, is the first chef Herr worked under when Herr graduated from chef's school at Edison Tech in Seattle. The kitchen was in the Schinook Hotel in Yakima, Washington.

Herr stresses the continuity maintained during the changeover.

"All the former employees are staying with us," he said. "That's always a good thing to say because so many people are happy here."

The Clam Box is basically a seafood restaurant, Herr explained in the dining room one day last week as he arranged a vase of yellow chrysanthemums.

"We have a good selection of all kinds of seafood -- practically any kind available," said Herr.

Chicken, pot roast and baked ham supplement the menu.

Herr's cooking style, he said, is "not American" but "classic."

"All these sauces are rather classic", he said. "They are quite generally used all over the world."

Much of the Clam Box's fish comes from Monterey Bay and is delivered by Monterey fish wholesalers.

Herr lists the bay's specialties as abalone, filet of sole and salmon.

There is a season for 90 percent of restaurant fish, he explained.

"Some people start talking about how good their places are," he said. "I don't particularly want to sound like that. There are lots of wonderful restaurants here in Carmel and I think we're one of them.

"I look at a restaurant as a service to the public.Some of the happiest times of people's lives come from being able to go out and eat dinner and enjoy themselves."

Herr is happy with the size of the place -- it seats 65 -- and layout.

A Cape Cod decor will be developed.

Carson heads Heart Fund special gifts

Retired attorney Leonard Carson of Pebble Beach has been appointed chairman of the Special Gifts campaign of the Central Mission Trails Heart Association. He will supervise advance and special gifts solicitations in the three counties of Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito.

Carson, who moved to the Peninsula three years ago from New York City, has been active in civic affairs both here and in the East. He is chairman of the Council of Ministries of the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel, and has taken part in church fund raising efforts for two years. In New York City, he was president of the Rotary Club, and also involved in several health agency programs.

The selection of Mr. Carson for the Heart Fund post was announced by Mrs. Joseph Reeves of Carmel, General Chairman of the fund raising campaign of the regional Central Mission Trails Heart Association.

In announcing the appointment, Mrs. Reeves said that the Special Gifts Division of the drive is an important section of the Heart campaign. Last year, more than $11,500 was raised in special gifts for heart research and local activities of the Heart Association.

The Special Gifts Division, Mrs. Reeves explained, is concerned with relatively few givers who make substantial gifts to the Heart campaign, in most cases $100 or more. This type of solicitation is usually made before the general campaign begins.

Big Red bows in overtime

Big Red was upset over the weekend.

The Carmel High School varsity basketball team lost 59-57 in overtime Saturday to King City.

It was the Padres' third overtime defeat this year and fourth game they've lost by one or two points.

The defeat dropped Carmel into a tie with King City and Pacific Grove for second place in Mission Trails League competition. Each has won three games and lost one in league play. Palma leads the race with a 4-0 win-loss record.

Carmel entered competition over the weekend with a chance to gain at least a tie for first place. They took a step forward Friday night by beating Marello 74-60.

"We were a little flat against Marello," said Coach Dick Charles. "We led by only eight points at half. We blew them out pretty good in the second half though."

Forward Jamie Thorne scored 25 points against Marello to maintain a 26.5 points per game average, best in the league and fourth best on the central coast.

Guards Kevin Cunningham and Jim Conlan had their best scoring nights of the season dunking 13 points each.

Forward John Neale also scored 13, Centers John Engstrom 5 and Steve Hiaasen 3 and Guard Jerry Argust 2.

Neale dunked a 30-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining to tie the score 55-55 to secure an overtime with King City Saturday night.

Three minutes later, at the end of the overtime, Thorne launched a shot which also sailed through the nets. However, the officials ruled he let fly after time had run out.

"It was frantic," Charles described the overtime.

"We lost the game because of inability to hit our shots," he said. "If we hit like we regularly do in the fourth quarter we would have scored 70 points again. We were taking a lot of bad shots."

Why?

"King City was better defensively than we've been used to."

Carmel scored on only 26 percent of field attempts versus 45-50 percent averaged in recent games.

Hiaasen scored 10 points, Neale 15, Thorne 22, Cunningham 3, Conlan 5 and Engstrom 2.

Thorne was double-teamed for the first time this season.

Carmel played Gonzales Tuesday night at home. Their next game is against Hollister tomorrow night at Hollister.

St. Philips

The sermon theme this Sunday at St. Philip's Lutheran Church is "See Jesus Only."

This is the last Sunday in the epiphany season this year, suggests the Rev. George Schardt. It is suggested in the rubrics of the church that emphasis be given on the last Sunday of epiphany to the transfiguration of Christ, the Rev. Schardt says. The transfiguration precedes Christ's going up to Jerusalem to suffer and die.

During the transfiguration on the mountain, Peter, James and John saw Jesus transfigured before them.

From this time Jesus gave his first clear announcements of his forthcoming sufferings and death.

The parable of the good Samaritan will be included in the Bible readings. "Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon. The Golden Text is from Romans: "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

A passage to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "The rich in spirit help the poor in one grand brotherhood, all having the same Principle, or Father; and blessed is that man who seeth his brother's need and supplieth it, seeking his own in another's good."

Sunday on the radio series, "The Truth That Heals," the subject will be "Looking for a Job: Where Does God Fit In?" The program will be broadcast at 7:45 a.m. over Station KRML and at 8:45 a.m. over Station KDON.

She spent her junior year as a Rotary Exchange Student in Japan and she will tell of her experiences during that year and of her impression of Japan.

She lived with a family of Japanese Rotarians as a member of the family and attended school at Mutsu, Aomori, a small city on the northern end of Honshu Island. At the same time that she was enjoying this unusual experience, the daughter of her Japanese hosts was in this country as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gilchrist and attending Salinas High School.

Members and friends of the Community Church are invited to attend this meeting.

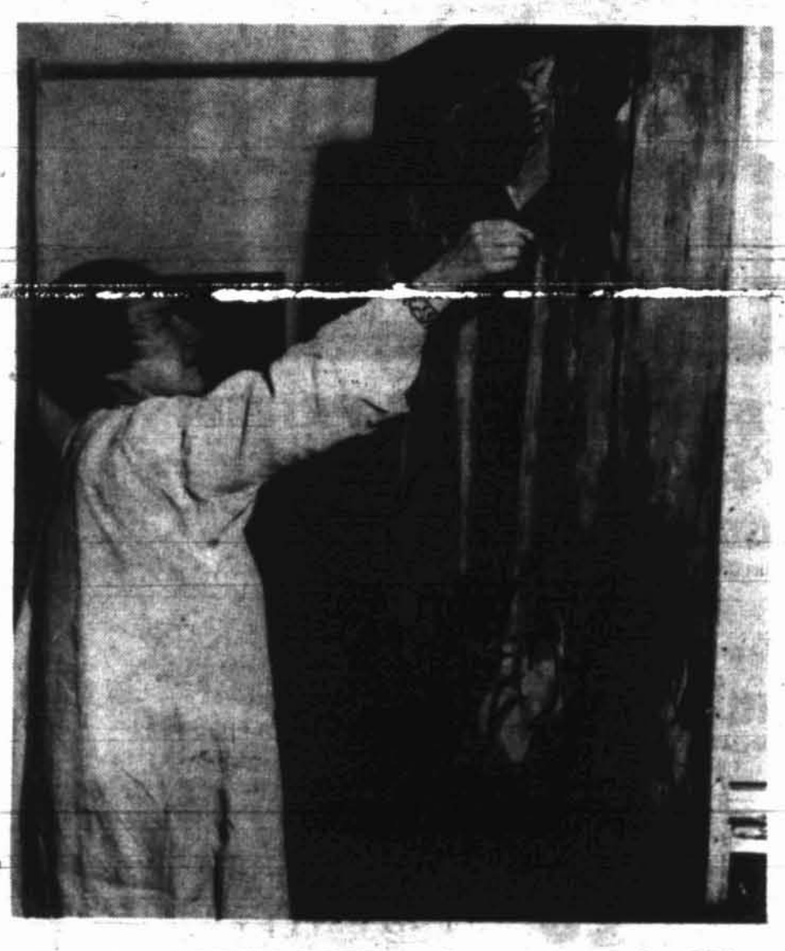
CARMEL CLOSEUP: Gilbert and Louise Boyer

A lifelong commitment to art

By JUDITH A. EISNER



LOUISE CARDEIRO BOYER at her easel painting "The Black Christ," inspired by a Mexican festival.

Gilbert and Louise Cardeiro Boyer have a lifelong commitment to art; he is a concert pianist, she a painter of renown. Gilbert doesn't paint; Louise doesn't play an instrument, except to pick out a tune when he isn't around. Yet both have an awareness of the interrelationship of all the arts that serves to unite them in their separate fields.

Both Boyers are originally from the New England area. They were married in 1953 and soon after set out on a circuitous tour of the United States, searching for a new home. Like so many other talented people, they stopped searching when they found Carmel. Since 1954, it has been their home base, although they have left the pines and sea often for extended visits abroad.

The Boyers aren't Carmelites in the usual sense. They are more properly residents of the world-at-large. Gilbert has visited 50 countries either on concert tours or doing volunteer work with disadvantaged people. He feels a strong kinship with London and Madrid; but for the time, Carmel is home. It is not, as he points out, the only conceivable home for them.

CAREER STARTS

Gilbert's musical career began almost haphazardly when he was in his early teens. At the age of nine, he had taken violin lessons, but gave up that instrument. There was, however, a piano in the house. Without lessons or outside incentive, Gilbert taughy himself to play the piano well enough to master Mozart sonatas.

He was playing in a local minstrel show in the Boston area when he was heard by the noted New England composer, Marcus Carroll. He was 15 years old.

Carroll recognized his talent and urged his parents to let Gilbert pursue a musical career. But Gilbert's father had decided his son was going to West Point instead.

Talent and a determined mother were on the boy's side; his military career was scrapped before it began and Gilbert began piano studies with composer Carroll. This in itself was an honor, for Carroll seldom taught; rather, Gilbert became his protege.

RAPID PROGRESS

So rapidly did he progress that after only six months of study he auditioned for the prestigious New England Conservatory of Music and was accepted. He was graduated after six years' study with a Piano Soloists Diploma with Honors and Distinction and a credential as a qualified teacher of piano.

Shortly thereafter, fortune again smiled on the young pianist and he was offered an opportunity to study with the internationally known pianist, Giuomar Novaes in Brazil.

He also studied with the eminent French pianist, Paul Doguereau, who had been an intimate of composer Maurice Ravel.

Gilbert has concertized extensively in the United States, Mexico, Central and South America and Europe. Noteworthy accomplishments include his lecture-concerts where he has played extensive selections from the work of one composer. In 1966 he performed over 100 of Chopin's major works; in 1967 he performed all 62 solo piano works of Debussy in four such lecture-concerts. He has also performed the works of Bach, Brahms, Beethoven, Ravel and Schumann in lecture-concerts.

In local musical circles, Gilbert is to be credited with being the "re-founder" of the acclaimed Monterey Peninsula Chamber Music Society. He reorganized the 10 year old group about five years ago, after it had unofficially disbanded.

LOUISE AN ARTIST

For Louise Cardeiro Boyer, becoming an artist was a childhood desire. She studied at the Boston Museum School of Art and embarked on a noteworthy and active career as an artist in this country and abroad.

One of the interesting bonuses of being married to a concert pianist is being able to accompany her husband. Louise has coupled her travels with exhibiting her paintings in major cities where Gilbert has played. She has also had the advantage of being able to paint on location in many different parts of the world.

Two of her most recent exhibits were held at Sunset Center and the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies in November. The Carmel exhibit, entitled "Tidepools and Rocks" represented one phase of Mrs. Boyer's art; the Foreign Studies exhibition showed works that were painted largely in South and Central America, where the Boyers lived and worked for five years.

The Boyers' involvement in furthering literacy among the illiterate peoples of underdeveloped countries began in 1958, right here at Carmel High School.

One evening, Mrs. Boyer accompanied her daughter, then a student at the high school, to hear a lecture on literacy training by a student of Dr. Frank Laubach, the late literacy campaigner. Dr. Laubach worked in over 300 countries, teaching reading and writing and, in many instances, creating for the first time a written form of a spoken language or dialect.

So deeply struck with the value of the program was Mrs. Boyer that she conveyed her enthusiasm to her husband. Together, they began to take courses in the Laubach method at Berkeley and to study Spanish. Their goal was to train people in Latin America in the simplified Laubach methods of teaching reading and writing to illiterates.

For more than five years they lived and taught in Mexico, Guatemala, Ecuador, Colombia and in European cities.

"We were among the first to be doing this work in Colombia," says Gilbert Boyer. "Now there are thousands of workers."

For a time, Gilbert was in the Peace Corps and Louise was "a Peace Corps wife." They coupled their careers in music and art with their newfound cause. Gilbert would give a concert, Louise an exhibition, and together they would spread the word of their literacy work. "We reached the wealthy people through our art," says Gilbert, "and often they would be influenced to contribute to this work."

In addition to her painting, Louise worked at illustrating and producing simple books for use in teaching illiterates.

In 1964, the Boyers gave up their literacy work for the time being.

AGREE TO STOP

"We originally got involved as volunteer workers in the summer. It grew into a full time occupation, working from 4 a.m. to 11 p.m. We found ourselves with no time for our art and music, so we agreed to stop," sayd Gilbert. But both Boyers feel very strongly that they will someday return to this work.

Gilbert had the opportunity to meet many famous Latin American composers while he was working in their countries. His concerts included the standard repertoire as well as works of native composers with whom Gilbert had been able to discuss the interpretation of their works.

One of Louise Boyer's most rewarding experiences occurred in a small, remote Mexican town, Valle de Bravo, about 100 miles southwest of Mexico City. Here, she met Gildardo Uribe, then 12 years old. Louise was training local potters to increase the value of their pottery through refined techniques and decorations. Gildrado was in a children's class. She noted his exceptional talent for drawing and became his first art teacher.

Recently, Gildardo was graduated from the National School of Painting and Sculpture in Mexico City. Out of 90 students who originally enrolled, only six graduated. Louise Boyer arranged his first United States exhibition of wood blocks at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art in September, and is gratified to see her protege's work gaining recognition.

THE ARTS MEET

Included in Louise's recent Sunset Center exhibition were works inspired by musical compositions. Here the two Boyer arts meet.

"The arts are interrelated and the performer must be sympathetic to all the arts and willing to correlate them to be able to produce the best interpretation," says Gilbert.

"Ravel and Debussy, in their Ondines did nothing but paint with music. And the Schumann Carnival is the outgrowth of a man who was a writer as well as a composer," he continues.

Louise Boyer has painted canvases inspired by music, even as composers have written music after being inspired by poetry. One example is a poem by William Sharp, "The White Peacock," which moved the contemporary American composer Charles Griffes to put the poem into musical form, which in turn motivated Louise Boyer to paint her "White Peacock." She has also painted pictures inspired by Debussy.

Both Louise and Gilbert work at their art every day. Louise feels she cannot wait for inspiration. "Inspiration comes with work," she says. "Momentum grows with constant work."

She will have her next exhibit in April at the Tantamount Theater in Carmel Valley.

Gilbert is currently presenting a series of five Tuesday evening concerts entitled "Piano Portraits, Concerts with Comments," in the Main Gallery of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. Included are works by the familiar composers such as Bach, Mozart, Chopin, Debussy, Liszt and Beethoven with the unique innovation of profiles of Latin American composers. Included will be Villa-Lobos of Brazil, Ponce and Chavez of Mexico, Uribe-Holguin of Colombia, Marroquin of Guatemala and others.

Because he likes his wife to accompany him on his concert tours, and because she is teaching art at Santa Catalina School, Gilbert is arranging concerts during summer vacation. Included in this summer's tour will be concerts in Paris and Madrid and other European cities.

Louise is kept busy with her teaching, painting and new love, ceramics, at which she displays a true artist's talent. She has begun teaching pottery to her students at Santa Catalina.

Gilbert's statement on his life as a pianist might very well hold true for both Boyers:

"There is an inner compulsion...God gives us talents and it's up to us to develop and perfect them."

THE ART OF bookmaking is part of the literacy program conducted by the Boyers. Here, Louise Boyer helps assemble simple Spanish storybooks which she also helped illustrate.

BY ALICE WOLFE

A VERY BEAUTIFUL exhibition is going into its last week at the Carmel Art Association on Dolores...the memorial show of Nell Walker Warner's paintings.

The Christian Science Monitor said of her: "California's flowers allow Nell Walker Warner to continue a work that has acclaimed her America's foremost painter of flowers."

Anthony Anderson, art critic for the Los Angeles Times wrote, "Nell Walker Warner is positively one of the ablest painters of flower studies America has ever produced."

She also painted landscapes of California and New England boats and harbor scenes.

The Carmel Art Association has a choice selection of the fine paintings of this world famous Carmel artist on view...a grand opportunity not to be missed!

While you are there, some new paintings hanging in the main gallery of unusual interest are "Three Sitters," a colorist portrait of three young boys by Keith Lindberg; a lovely traditionalist California landscape, "Pattee Oaks," painted by Reginald Machado, is a scene of golden meadows and woodland, with deer grazing under live oaks in late afternoon sunshine.

In the entrance room are two beautiful sculptures, one cast in gold, "Spring Peepers" climbing up blades of grass...the other is cast in bronze, a "Colt Scratching." Both of these lovely pieces are the work of Carmel artist Beth Garcia.

A FINE NEW GALLERY was opened in November in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center. Canadian-born Mrs. Estella Hariri has had a lifelong career in art that has culminated in Estella's Gallery Gifts. The Banff School of Fine Arts, the Art Center in Los Angeles, and the Art Students League in New York City are her Alma Maters.

She is the wife of Dr. M.S. Hariri who teaches sociology at the Monterey Peninsula College. For many years the Hariris lived in Beirut, Lebanon, where Mrs. Hariri taught art at both the University of Beirut and the Beirut College for Women. She is a fine, highly individulaistic painter, who has attracted a rare group of artists with originality and style to show their work at her gallery.

Among them, Mrs. Bernice Wheelock, of Del Mesa, has some impressionist watercolors of Carmel's artichoke fields. John La Pierre shows some unusual and powerful collages, [illegible] of San Francisco, Monterey and Mexico City. (He will be at Estella's Gallery Gifts Jan. 29, at 7:30 p.m. to demonstrate and teach his strong collage technique.)

Arthur Young, a well known New York City artist, creates clean, clear, fresh watercolor paintings...some fine landscapes and florals by Carmel Valley artist Virginia Ford ...also portraits by Jerry Van Megert.

Nick Guastella, well known Monterey wood sculptor, who has refined a beautiful patina for his carvings, has a noble piece here; three feet high, it is entitled "The Roman."

Beaded stained glass hanging pieces by Louise Pullen, who recently donated a beautiful stained glass window for the chapel of the Robert Louis Stevenson School are also on view.

IF YOU HAVEN'T been there lately, a great place to visit is The Tudor Gallery, on Mission south of Ocean Ave. You will see a stimulating, unusual roster of artists.

Liset De Winne, for one, paints impressionist portraits of mothers with their children, in a most winsome and introspective manner. The gentle rapport and love between mother and child is conveyed with a serenity of light that never inhibits the definite character of the sitters.

There are fine marine paintings by De Witt Whistler Jayne, who is a professor of art. His work has appeared in many of the national art magazines.

Tom Granier paints Americana with a dry brush realistic style reminiscent of Andrew Wyeth.

Peter Plamondon, a first prize winner at the Monterey County Fair Art Show last year, also shows his paintings at The Tudor Gallery.

James Blacketeris is a painter of vast landscapes. His heroic mountains and plains are illuminated by vivid sunsets. He is a present day standard-bearer for Albert Beirstadt and the Hudson River school of painters.

Some fine abstract paintings by Sharon Smith, who is strong on design and bold in color. There is no mincing around in her appraoch to painting.

Also the work of Santa Barbara artist, Marco Sassone, a pointist impressionist painter [illegible] into a style all his own with large dashes of color.

Stan Parks is the curator and owner of The Tudor Gallery. He also conducts a most enjoyable and informative tour.

Carmel producer readies documentary

Carmel film producer Portia Mansfield is back in town preparing distribution of her new movie, "You Make Your Own Mountain."

The film records the experience in the high Rockies of Expedition Unit climbers from the Perry-Mansfield Boys Camp in Steamboat Springs, Colorado.

Miss Mansfield is camp director.

The 16mm, 14-minute color film was photographed by Len Aitken with camera help from Skip Eno and Bill Snyder. Sound and music is supplied by Charles Pyle and technical advice by Ray Palmer.

"Make Your Own Mountain" has been previewed locally at Robert Louis Stevenson and Santa Catalina Schools, Carmel High School and Monterey Peninsula College.

The first local public showing is scheduled at the Tantamount Theater in Carmel Valley April 9 and 10.

"I've had a great many requests for showing the film but I can't have any more or less public ones in this area until after our booking at the Tantamount," says Miss Mansfield.

She indicated the imminent possibility of a private showing in Carmel, however.

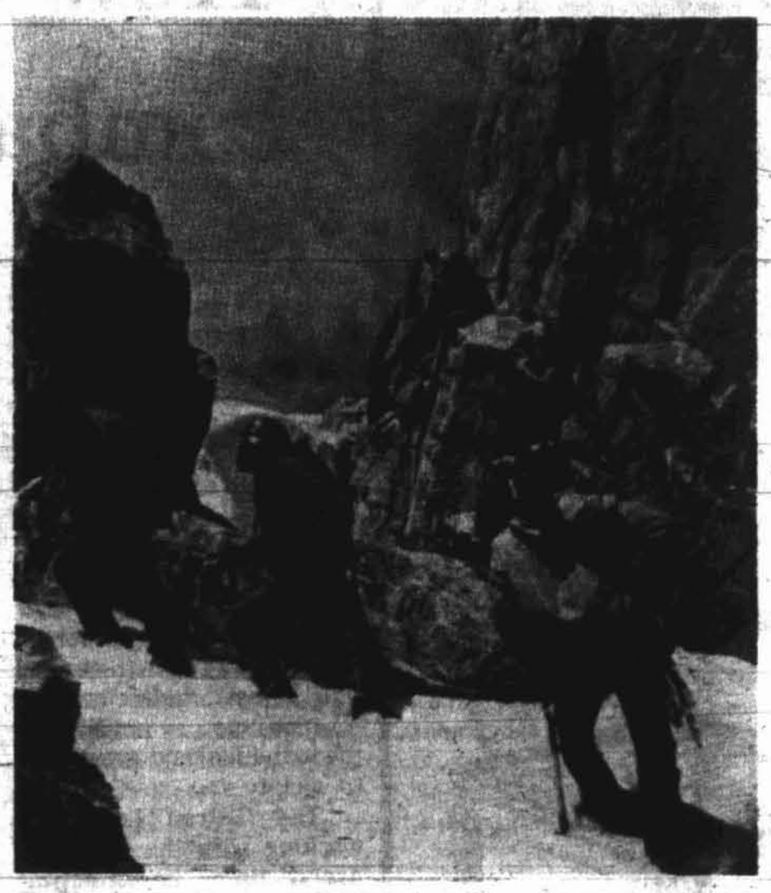
Meanwhile, two other copies of the film are booked through January and February at libraries and public high schools in Boulder, Colo., St. Louis and Chicago.

The film is intended for showing primarily to students, explains Miss Mansfield.

"Make Your Own Mountain" is the latest in a series of documentaries Miss Mansfield has produced. She has specialized in dance films shot at the Perry-Mansfield School of Theatre and Dance in Colorado.

"She was among the first to see the advantages of movie films as a teaching technique," the Steamboat Pilot said in a review of Miss Mansfield's work.

"She specialized in filming dance in the early '20's and in 1969 her work was recognized when Lincoln Center Library, NYC, requested a complete set of her films. In October 1969 she taped commentary for her very early films featuring Jose Limon and others of the 'modern' movement who taught at Perry-Mansfield. (Excerpts from Perry Mansfield films have appeared in TV documentaries.)"



STUDENT CLIMBERS challenge peak in Portia Mansfield film "Make Your Own Mountain" to be shown locally later this year.

Registration open for UCSC art courses at high school

Registration is still open for the art lectures covering the period since the last world war given by John Faulkner of the University of California at Santa Cruz Entension.

They are being held at Carmel High School, Room 4, on Thursday evenings, from 7 until 10 o' clock, and may be taken for three units of credit. No prerequisites are required.

Entitled "The End of Art As It Was," the lectures are supplemented by projected color slides from the UCSC collection.

The lives and work of the first non-representional painters such as Robert Delaunay, Vasily Kandinsky, Piet Mondrian and Paul Klee will be covered as well as those of the constructivists, surrealists, action and pop art painters and sculptors.

The course will lead into another, "Making Mind Visible," to be presented in April which will concentrate on the Surrealists Salvatore Dali, Francis Bacon and Rene Magritte.

Student doodling will be psychoanalyzed for relevant symbols and three short films will be included.

Faulkner, a painter, educated in England, will lead a painting workshop on Saturday mornings, starting in February at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art in Monterey.

How Carmel schools combat drug problem

The Carmel school board adopted the following statement on the district's drug program last week:

"The Carmel Unified School District, under the direction of a Community Counselor, has instituted a program to abate the misuse of drugs by our children and youth. The position of the District is that the abuse of all harmful substances and drugs such as alcohol, barbiturates, heroin, marijuana, hallucinogens, tobacco, etc., is harmful to the individual and eventually to society.

"The District feels that working with the young to assist them in selecting appropriate alternatives to drugs will be a successful approach. It further feels that the complete cooperation of the schools, law enforcement agencies, organized religion, health agencies, parents, students and the community-at-large is necessary before this approach can be fully successful.

"The major thrust of the Carmel Unified School District is to prevent the misuse of drugs through education and counseling and to assist those involved with drug misuse through counseling and-or the direct assistance of community health agencies."

In discussing the statement, Supt. of Schools Harris Taylor said that by "alternatives to drugs" the school district means activities -- sports, community service, recreation, work experience programs and wide variety of programs. He said sensitivity training is not considered an "alternative to drugs."

Taylor also revealed that the school district now has tapes of lectures on drugs given by Dr. Hardin Jones of the University of California, and is using them as part of its staff training programs.

He said the district would be happy to lend the tapes to anyone who is interested.

Taylor also said that he wrote Congressman Burt Talcott three months ago to urge that law enforcement be improved along the Monterey County coastline. Taylor said he wrote the letter after learning that local law enforcement officials believe that many drugs are brought into this area through Monterey's "open port", which the Federal Bureau of Narcotics is unable to supervise for lack of funds.

European artists at Zantman's

The latest acquisitions of works by European painters gathered by Mrs. and Mrs. Zantman during their recent trip abroad will be shown as the first exhibit of the 1971 schedule at Zantman Art Galleries in Carmel starting Saturday.

The artists being shown will include some of the latest works of the internationally acclaimed Michel de Gallard. Also on view will be works of Jacques Voyet, Jean Jansem, Guy Cambier, Max Savy and Guy Seradour.

A very important addition to this list is the distinguished artist Bob Gesinus, some of whose work the Zantman's obtained from the artist when visiting him.

Born in Holland in 1899, he studied at the National Academy in The Hague, and then settled in Paris where recognition of his talent came quickly.

His work is somewhat reminiscent of Van Gogh, although critics agree that Bob Gesinus has a style unmistakably his own which conveys a sense of happiness and freedom.

The music corner

BY IRVING W. GREENBERG, Ph.D.

FOR THE THIRD CONCERT of the current season of the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra, last weekend, Maestro Haymo Taeuber leaned heavily on the Romantics, with the additional inclusion of two short modern works.

The program opened with the Overture for Orchestra by Charles Harlan, the tympanist of the Symphony. It is a work that begins with muted strings, and proceeds along its exposition to the other sections of the Orchestra, concluding with a coda which is somewhat related to the introduction.

This is an interesting work that reflects a certain trend in contemporary composition, and is useful in demonstrating that there are individuals in the community capable of such composition, and that there is an orchestra and a forum where it can be played and be heard.

The Rumanian Folk Dances of Bela Bartok, originally scored for solo piano, were transcribed in the present version by the composer for a small orchestra. They reflect Bartok's deep involvement with the folk music legacy of Hungary, Slovakia and Rumania. These are charming, joyful and lovely works giving the listener an aura of well-being. These dances, titled : Stick Dance; Waistband Dance; On the Spot; Hornpipe Dance; Children's Dance; and Small Step, were indeed very well played by the Orchestra, and successfully projected the image of the folk idiom of Rumania.

The Violin Concerto No. 1 in D major of Nicolo Paganini is probably one of the most taxing for the soloist in all violin literature. It is as imposing as it is imaginative in the transition of the majestic allegro maestoso to the simplicity and glowing passion of the adagio espressivo to the final overwhelming esprit of the rondo.

The Violin Concerto No. 1 in D major of Nicolo Paganini is probably one of the most taxing for the soloist in all violin literature. It is as imposing as it is imaginative in the transition of the majestic allegro maestoso to the simplicity and glowing passion of the adagio espressivo to the final overshelming esprit of the rondo.

Mari Tsumura, the young Japanese violinist, was the soloist in this work. It will be recalled that Miss Tsumura gave a beautifully impassioned interpretation of the Sibelius Violin Concerto last season with the Orchestra. Here again, she demonstrated her technical mastery of this difficult concerto, in all the three movements of the work played as one unit. Her vibrato sang and her glissandi were beautifully expressed and controlled, especially in the long cadenza preceding the final tutti. A little more abandon and introspective involvement might have created additional interest. The orchestra responded beautifully to the free, sensitive and well-paced direction of the Maestro.

The Dvorak Symphony No. 8 in G major, Op. 88, is undoubtedly one of the towering masterpieces of the Romantic era. It is fundamentally based on the alternating tonalities of minor and major.

The scoring for the horns and the violas is as varied as it is for any of the woodwinds, and contributes its full share to the exuberance of the result. The playing of this work by the orchestra succeeded in giving it an impression of unity which belied its unorthodoxy. Maestro Haymo Taeuber directed the orchestra in such an incisive manner that the dynamics and tonal sonorities of the work came through splendidly, especially in the lyrical adagio movement. It was indeed a beautiful concert, beautifully interpreted and beautifully directed.

Recommended recordings of the above works:

Bela Bartok: Rumanian Folk Dances – Ansermet, Orchestre de la Suisse Romande on London 6407.

Nicolo Paganini: Violin Concerto No. 1 in D major, Op. 6 – Leonid Kogan with the Paris Conservatory Orchestra cond. by Charles Bruck on Angel 35502.

Antonin Dvorak : Symphony No. 8 in G major, Op. 88 – Istvan Kertesz conducting the London Symphony Orchestra on London CS-6358.

The above was omitted from last week's Pine Cone for lack of space. It is printed this week for the convenience of our readers.

THE DIMOV QUARTET from Bulgaria gave a recital Friday last, Jan. 22 at Sunset Cultural Center. From the very first notes, it was evident that this was an ensemble of exceptional merit, both in their interpretation and in the velvety smoothness of their performance. There was no scraping of bows, no forcing of tone for effects, as is sometimes encountered in such groups whose purpose is only to effect a bravura performance.

The first work performed, the Mozart Quartet in C major, K. 465, labelled the "Dissonant," is in four movements: Adagio, allegro; Andante cantabile; Menuetto; Allegro Molto.

The general tenor of the first movement is vigorous and bouyant, but first there are moments of deep melancholy to be overcome. These moments are apparent in the famous introduction from which the quartet takes its descriptive title of "Dissonant." Of course, with the evolution of modern music, this work can hardly be termed dissonant.

The Menuetto (allegro) is in the usual strict form. The Trio is in Mozart's most romantically impassioned style. The concluding allegro molto is marvellously serene on the whole with only a suggestion now and again of a darker emotion.

The Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 of Bela Bartok, written between 1915 and 1917, constitutes in its three movements one of Bartok's most daring innovations in the manner of organizing formal coherence. The scherzo-like fast movement becomes the gravitational center of the three-movement scheme.

In this work, the Dimov ensemble showed their complete affinity with the score to an unusual degree of involvement, producing a performance that not only abounded in vitality, but also in the close interpretation of the music.

The last work performed, the Beethoven Quartet in F minor, Op. 95, labelled the "Serious," shows the composer going in the direction of a more spare texture. This work is scored in four movements: Allegro con brio; Allegretto ma non troppo; Allegro assai vivace; and Larghetto, allegretto agitato.

In this work, there is but one idea on the part of the composer—the quintessence, the ideal of the quartet itself. What one heard in the performance of this work by the Dimov players was the tonal beauty, the sensitive inflection of the integrated playing, and musical understanding and good taste.

As an encore, the ensemble played the third movement of the Bulgarian Scherzo by the modern Bulgarian composer, Krassimir Kürktchiski. This was indeed a rewarding finish to a most noteworthy evening of chamber music.

The principals of this ensemble are: Dimo Dimov, violin; Alexander Tomov, violin; Dimiter Tschilikov, viola; and Dimiter Kozov, cello.

'High Himalaya' plays at Sunset Theatre this week

"High Himalaya", an unusual feature length color travel adventure film, will be screened as part of the Explorama Series at 8:15 p.m. Thursday and Friday, at Carmel's Sunset Auditorium.

The film has been acclaimed as one of the most unusual documentaries of recent times. It was photographed on location in Nagar, Kafiristan, Pakistan and Hunza. The film includes footage of areas being photographed for the first time for western audiences. Highlights include a spectacular performance by the historic Khyber Riflemen, the world's best marksmen, who are the guardians of the famed Khyber Pass; the unusual Kingdom of Hunza which is the suggested locale for James Hilton's famous novel "Lost Horizon", where people are living in perfect mental and physical health at the age of 130; the secret kingdom of Nagar, perhaps the most remote and difficult country to reach in the world. In Kafiristan the film includes fantastic barbaric and pagan rituals climaxed by the Feast of the Kafirs in the Pagan Valley.

The film will be narrated in person by its producer Russ Potter. Mr. Potter is one of America's foremost professional speakers and travel adventure film producers. His voice is heard on the Walt Disney series of LP albums. He has also appeared frequently on nationwide television.

"THE MIR OF HUNZA" from Russ Potter's "High Himalaya".

Sunrise to Sunset

As February 1st doth approach, I'm happy to emphasize the exciting climax to our musical agenda for the month of January as the Dimov Quartet, under the sponsorship of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber Music Society presented a stimulating program last Friday night. This world-renowned quartet offered a rare treat for all chamber music devotees.

Speaking of January presentations, the Japanese violinist, Mari Tsumura, once again won ovation after ovation for her thrilling performance of the Paganini violin concerto with our Monterey County Symphony. This young virtuoso, excelling in the intricate skills of her demanding instrument, combined with the high artistry of her profession, held her audience completely spellbound.

To usher in February on the proper musical note, a rare treat is in store for our Peninsula music patrons as the combined Men's and Women's Glee Club of Pomona College, Claremont, ring loud and clear on stage Tuesday evening, 8:15 p.m. at Sunset Theater. This concert is under the joint sponsorship of the Pomona College Alumni Association and the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies.

The Glee Club has a continuous history dating back to the founding of the College in 1887; although it has always been extra-curricular, it is entirely managed by student members. Be sure to mark the date on your calendar. Tickets are available at the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies, 425 Van Buren St., Monterey or phone 373-4779, Ext. 51. Encourage, attend, and participate in the joy of youthful talent.

If remote lands of ice and snow untouched by civilization are of intense interest to you, the lands of Hunaz, Kafiristan, Nagar, and Pakistan are awaiting you in our next Explorama presentation next Thursday, Jan. 28, 8:15 p.m. or Friday, Jan. 29. Produced and narrated by Russ Potter, "High Himalaya" is exotic, exciting, and unusual.

The weeks pass so quickly I can hardly believe another opening by the Friends of Photography last Friday. This exhibit, on display through Feb. 28, features Cavalliere Ketchum and Anne Noggle.

My closing thought for the day: to quote one of my favorite poets, Kahlil Gibran, "Work is love made visible. And if you cannot work with love, but only with distaste, it is better that you should leave your work and sit at the gate of the temple and take alms of those who work with joy."

Sincerely,
DOROTHY BOWMAN

'Tunnel of Love' to open at Studio Feb. 5

Opening Friday, Feb. 5, at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant is "The Tunnel of Love" by Joseph Fields and Peter De Vries, based on the latter's comic novel of the same name.

Achieving 417 performances as a Theatre Guild offering of the 1957 Broadway season, it starred Tom Ewell as Augie Poole and Nancy Olson as his wife whose conventionally suburban marriage seems doomed to childlessness. When a sultry social worker comes to check their qualifications to adopt a child, Augie finds he is not immune to the kind of temptation he had thought reserved for others.

A significant nine months later, the adoption agency offers the couple a baby which bears such an astonishing resemblance to Augie that his wife's suspicions are aroused. Eventually all is resolved happily as might be expected of a comedy that became a Doris Day movie.

Under the direction of Bill Asp, "The Tunnel of Love" will play Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights at the Studio until mid-March.

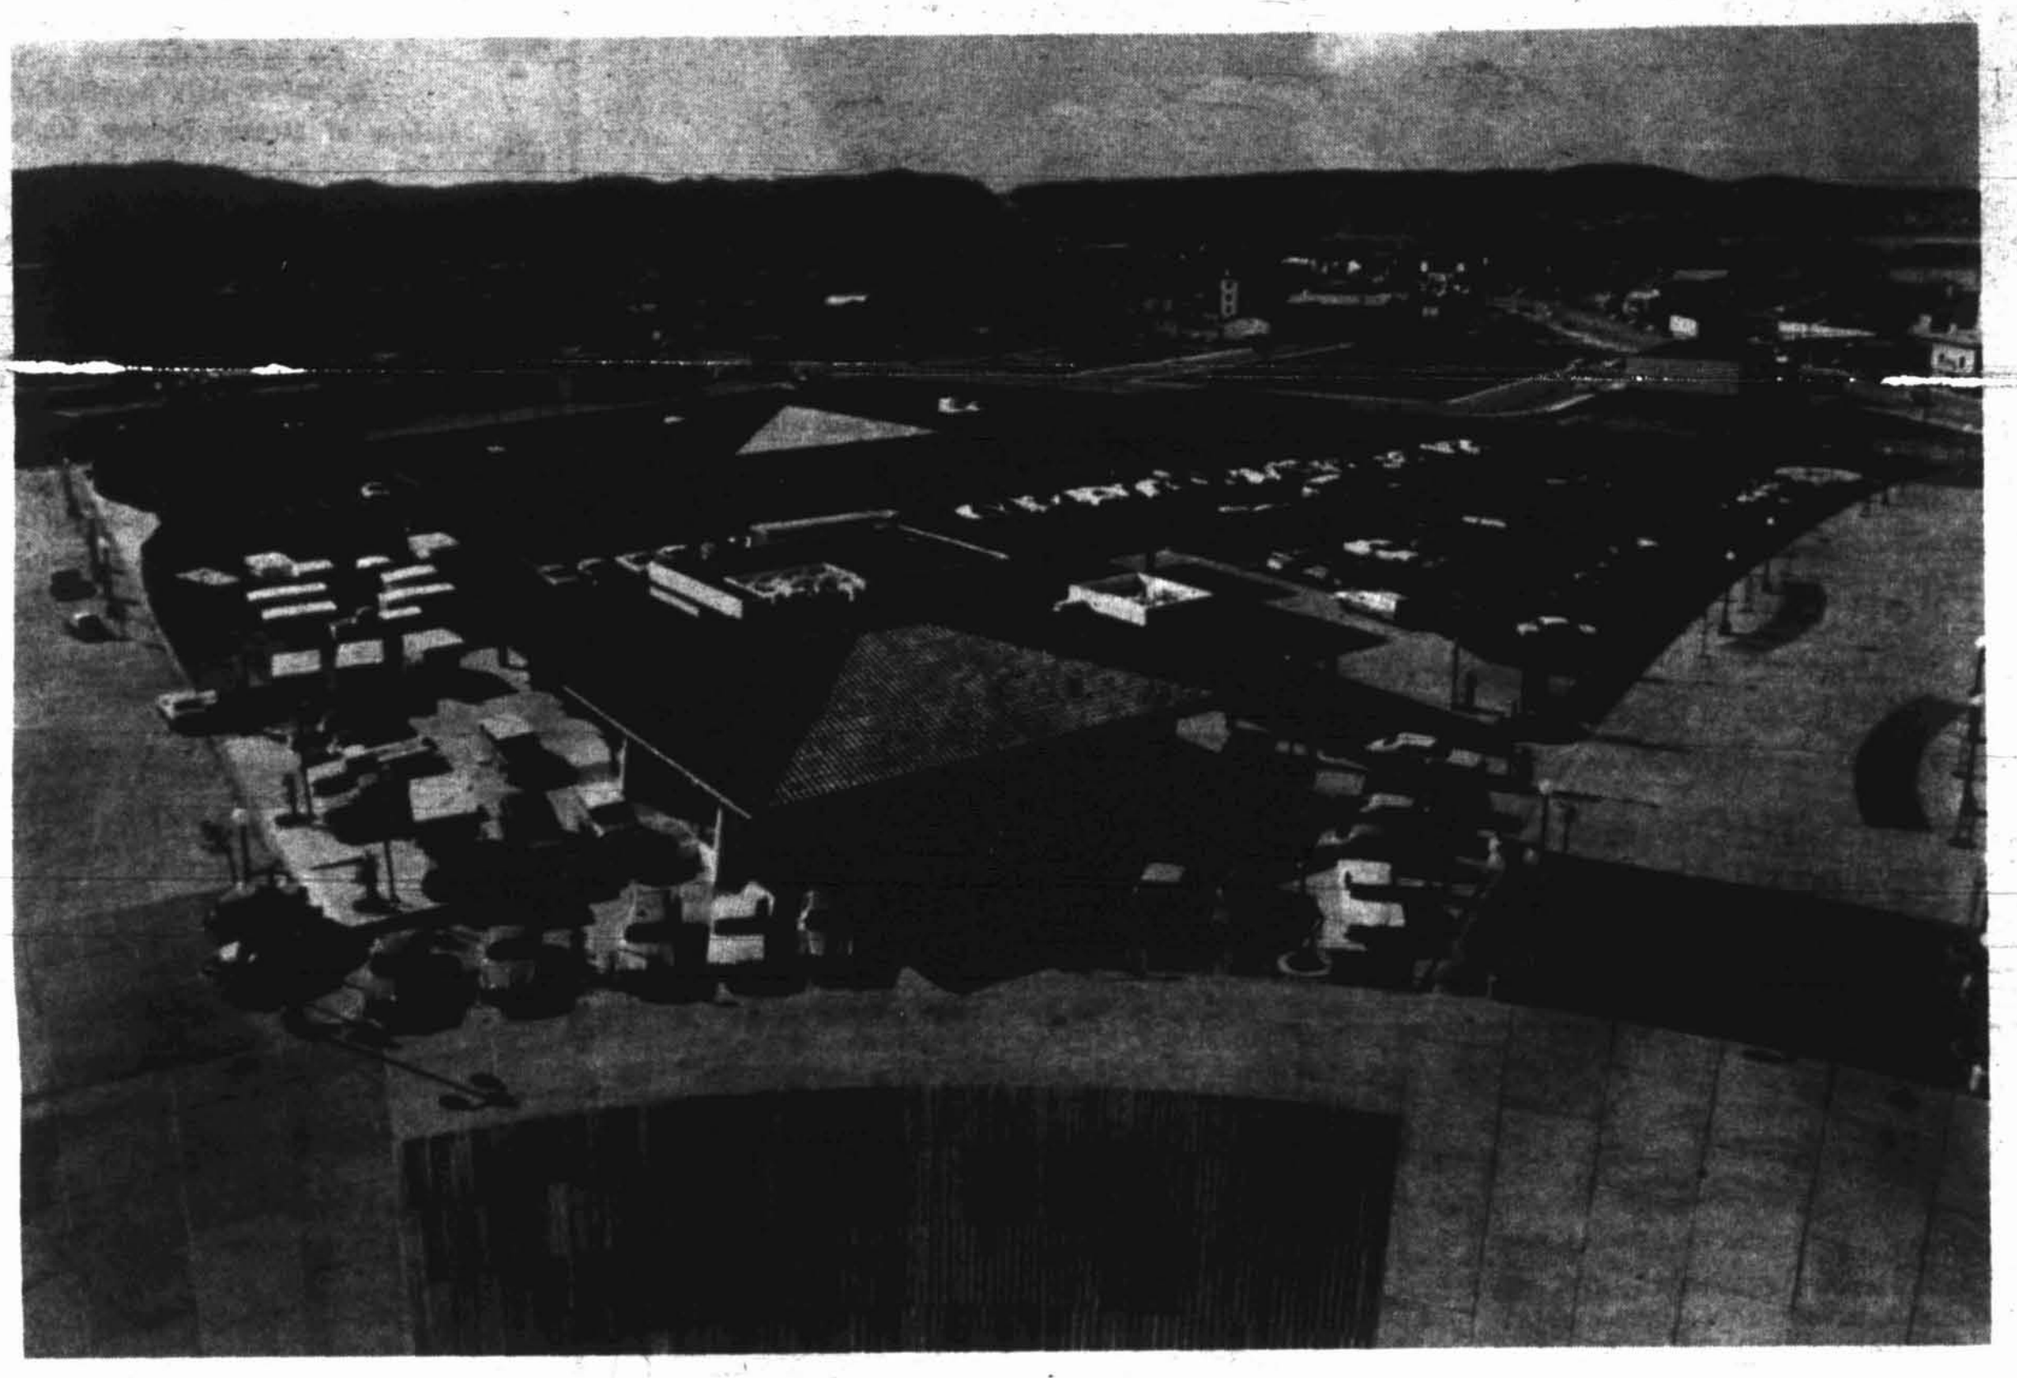
Pontiac announces a new location for Butts Pontiac-Cadillac



Thanks for making it necessary.

It's this way. If it weren't for the thousands of steady customers he has, there'd be no reason to expand. The original setup would be plenty big enough. But thanks to you and people like you, he's on the move. Growing bigger. To serve you better.

And what better way to serve you than by showing you his new 1971 Pontiacs. Like the beautiful new Grand Ville—a true luxury car at a sensible price. The new Grand Safari and Safari Station Wagons with their disappearing tailgates. And the new Catalina Brougham, for people who want all of Catalina's traditional value plus a little more elegance. While you're there, take a stroll around and see all the other brand-new Pontiacs for 1971. Bonneville, Catalina, LeMans, LeMans Sport, GTO, Grand Prix, Firebird and T-37.

So take a few minutes soon and visit this fast-growing Pontiac dealer. Even if you're not ready to buy a new Pontiac right now, he'll be delighted to see you and show you all of his facilities.

SECTION II

1,000 doctors descend on Carmel for annual conclave

"Is there a doctor in the house?"

The answer in virtually every nook and cranny in Carmel this weekend should be an emphatic, "Yes!"

More than 1,000 doctors will be in Carmel through Saturday for professional meetings at four locations: The Village Theatre, Golden Bough Theatre, Sunset Center and the La Playa Hotel.

Together with their wives, they are occupying every hotel room in the Village and surrounding areas, so if you were thinking of inviting Aunt Mary for the weekend—forget it!

The four professional groups meeting here are the Western Assn. of Physicians; the Western Society for Clinical Research; Western Section, American Federation for Clinical Research; and the Western Society for Pediatric Research.

Also, in case you were hoping for a little free medical advice, consider these subjects of discussion during the sessions this week: "Natural History of Mitral Stenosis; a Longitudinal Clinical and Hemodynamic Study"; or, "Decrease in the Size of Experimental Myocardial Infarct Following Acute Coronary Occlusion by Glucose-Insulin-Potassium Infusion."

Scientific papers and studies will be offered for the doctors' consideration and information in Clinical Research, Cardiovascular Research, Endocrinology, Infectious Disease and Immunology, Newborn and Developmental Biology, Pediatrics, Genetics and Metabolism, Patient Care, Pulmonary Disorders, Renal and Electrolyte Research, Gastroenterology, Genetics and Hematology-Oncology.

The doctors have wisely chosen for some ten years to spread their joint meetings throughout the four meeting places in Carmel and arrange for their own hotel and motel accommodations, rather than hold the meetings in a large hotel in a metropolitan area.

Carmel's weatherbird is predicting continued fair weather through the weekend, so some of the hard-working medical men might find some time to slip away for a few rounds of golf on the many courses in the immediate vicinity.

It won't be all work and no play, however. Working dinner meetings will be held each evening at some of Carmel's finest eating places and other popular dining spots on the Peninsula.

REGISTRATION TIME: It was a hectic scene at Carmel's Village Theatre yesterday as doctors from all of the Western States convened for their joint annual meetings. Seen penning the registration forms at the opening of the convention are Drs. Timothy Fleming (foreground), Seymour Dibanoff (rt.), Robert L. Kroc (at his rt.) and Howard Moralli (left). The meetings continue through Saturday at four Carmel locations. (photo by George T.C. Smith).

PADRE PARENTS BARGAIN FAIR

The Padre Parents of Carmel High School will hold their third annual Bargain Fair Saturday, Mar. 13 at the Donald Craig Gym. Proceeds from this event go to the Carmel High School Scholarship Fund.

Hugh Smith, president of the Padre Parents, announced co-chairmen for the Fair would be Mrs. Gene Vandevort, 624-8801, Mrs. Sam Marinkovich, 624-8798, Mrs. Tom Argust, 624-1675, and Mrs. Milton Frincke, 624-0537.

All rummage in usable and salable condition will be gratefully received. Parents or others wishing to participate in organizing and working at the fair may contact Mrs. Gene Vandevort.

Sections of the fair are: plants, household items, baby and children's wear, teen, shoes, jewelry, purses and hats, books and records, arts and boutique, mens' wear, women's wear, toys and sports, furniture and lingerie.

The conscience of Carmel

Environment and elections-Part II

By GUNNAR NORBERG

TWO WEEKS AGO, in this column, we began a discussion of environment, mainly the local physical environment, and specifically the proposals for improvement of the Carmel sewage disposal facilities, which had been presented at an evening-long discourse by learned men at Carmel High School's Brey Hall.

Apropos of this, we hinted that elections to local government posts could importantly affect the direction eventually taken in far-reaching environmental decisions of many kinds. We added, however, that we had no intent either to malign the men of learning who took part in the Brey Hall forum, nor the current board members who determine the activities of the Carmel Sanitary District.

Perhaps we should add, again, that the audience at the Brey Hall forum, was both large and attentive -- and for a long period of time -- even when complex, and not always seemingly relevant, theory and data was being presented by the highly educated life scientists and physical scientists who composed the learned panel.

We mentioned, two weeks ago, that board members of the Carmel Sanitary District do hold elective office, but we added that they have not always been elected by a vote of the people. We added that we did not have space, that time, to explain this seemingly riddle.

WE ALSO IMPLIED, at least, that there was something beyond forum presentation or panel discussion, no matter how freely given or how eruditely detailed, which members of the intellectual community, here or anywhere, could contribute in their communities, but frequently don't. Again, we did not have space, then, to explain.

First, let's see how it happens that Carmel Sanitary Board directors hold elective office but still aren't always elected by an actual vote of the people.

Every other year -- in odd-numbered years -- the Sanitary Board publishes notice of an election and gives the dates when candidates may state their intention to seek to fill the vacancies available at the announced election. Shelburn Robison, long-time attorney for the Carmel Sanitary Board, states that such an election notice will be given this year in July and that the positions now held by Harold Arnot, Henry Fonseca, and Willis Shepard will be filled at an election this year -- if it actually becomes necessary to hold such an election. Why, you ask, do I say "if" an election becomes necessary?

THAT'S BECAUSE there will be no election if only the incumbents become candidates for the vacancies, during the filing period. If there is no contest to be resolved at an actual election, the Sanitary Board simply cancels the election to save election expense, and the County Board of Supervisors then declares the Sanitary Board incumbents, elected. They then hold office for another term of four years. (There are five directors who make up the Sanitary Board, and the two who do not come up for election this year -- the hold-over members -- are James Pruitt and J. Wentworth Lewis).

When I called the Sanitary Board office to try to find when the last actual election for Board members had been held, the record was not immediately available. It was, however, thought that I might have been the last participant in a contested Sanitary Board election. If so, that took place twenty years ago, and the result became a newsworthy headline, for I lost by a single vote to the late Allen Knight, who happened just then to have been mayor of Carmel in addition to having been an incumbent Sanitary Board member.

Knight did, in fact, continue to be a Sanitary Board member for many years after that narrowly contested election. (Eventually I served with him, not on the Sanitary Board, but on the Carmel City Council of which we were both members in the 1958-60 period).

However, the point here isn't whether Allen Knight or I happened to have been elected to the Sanitary Board back in 1951. It is only an indication of the length of time that conceivably can elapse between actual elections held to choose Sanitary Board members. But this is not an extra-ordinary situation. It frequently occurs. There are some forty self-governing "special districts" in Monterey County, of which the Carmel Sanitary District is only one, and it is likely that an investigation would indicate that few popular elections are ever held to select their board membership.

Again, you may ask, why? Much of the time, the public takes little interest in, or has only slight awareness even of the existence of most so-called "special district" boards. Such boards often operate in rural areas or in settlements which haven't yet become incorporated cities. In the case of the Carmel Sanitary District, however, that district not only serves most of the unincorporated areas outside of the City of Carmel, but also it serves the area within Carmel's city limits, which is a somewhat unusual circumstance, since most cities operate their own sewage disposal facilities.

JUST NOW there is an acute public awareness of pollution, not only here but everywhere, and a concomitant concern for the quality of the physical environment, and because of this awareness and this concern, the current expansion and improvement plans of the Carmel Sanitary District have made the local public acutely conscious not only of the existence of that organization but of the possible environmental impact of its recent and proposed activities.

It was, in fact, because of this that so many of the learned so willingly gathered to take part in the Brey Hall panel discussion to which we originally alluded. Here we wanted to suggest other efforts the intellectual community might beneficially make, but we will have to take that up next week, along with further thoughts about local elections, and their long-term effect on environmental concepts.

A WELL KNOWN Pebble Beach hostess, Mrs. Thomas Christian, gave a splendid cocktail buffet party for more than 100 of her many friends, at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club Saturday night.

The hostess was a regal beauty wearing a pale blue silk gown. She said, "I thoroughly enjoyed my own party. I didn't do one thing. Margaret Stewart and Arthur Furter, the headwaitress and the chef at the Country Club, did everything." ("Everything" was oysters Rockefeller, shrimp, roast fillet of beef, and baked ham, to suggest a few of the delicacies on the buffet.)

"Mrs. Eleanor Work sent me some lovely flowers from her garden, that Margie Marotti, on the Country Club Staff, arranged to perfection for the tables."

Mrs. Christian recalled, "I used to give five parties a year. I cooked everything beforehand, myself. Then, I would have waitresses serve the dinner, while I had a good time. Now, I just concentrate on enjoying myself, with my guests."

Mrs. Christian was born in Boston, where she lived until she was married. Beautiful Boston is still her favorite city. "A proper Bostonian?" I ventured. "Gracious, no," she said laughing. "I've never been proper in my life. Furthermore, to be a proper Bostonian, you have to go to concerts. I hate concerts. As a young lady, I had to go to the symphony twice a week, on Tuesday and Friday afternoons. I have avoided it ever since."

Mrs. Christian first came to the Monterey Peninsula in 1919, to visit her brother, the late Samuel F.B. Morse. She fell in love with Pebble Beach and knew that she would come back here to live one day. Married to an army officer, she has lived on army posts for many years. She said, "It has taken me a long time to get here, but I knew I'd make it."

AN OPEN HOUSE RECEPTION for a continental roster of guests was given by Mrs. Jacqueline Flavin at her new town house in the Carmel Valley Country Club Sunday.

A large contingent of Carmel internationalists attended...more French was spoken than English!

The buffet was a gourmet's delight, laden with pate de fois gras, French cheeses and petits fours.

The guest list included Mr. and Mrs. Francis Palms, William Evert, Claude Cowiteol, George Clemens, Francis Carr, John Gisen, Leonard Klene, Henri Corbat, Jacques Ilbeck, James Tyson, Henry Hoppin, Ambassador and Mrs. Tony Freeman, Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Kenan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hogan, Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Lusignan, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Carlson, John Dowdakin, Ronald Kayfield, Francisco Ferro and Al Klauss.

Also, Roderick Dewar, Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Page, Mr. Milton C. Coburn, San Francisco, and Mrs. Emmy Papazian, San Francisco, Mrs. Mary Bell Hughes, Mrs. Nancy Lloyd, Mrs. Terry Jones, Mrs. Luciana Harris, Mrs. Georgia von Richter, Mrs. Norma Lockwood, Mrs. Phyllis Jervey, Mrs. Germaine Olivie, Mrs. Malou Jacobs, and William Cano, Edward Haber, John Clancy, August Armanasco, Joseph Produit and Walter Baker.

A NUMBER OF FOREIGN students enrolled in the graduate schools of the University of California at Berkeley were guests of local members of the Monterey Peninsula Branch of the American Assn. of University Women last weekend.

The students were invited through the community relations program at International House of the Berkeley campus.

A variety of entertainment was planned by the various hosts and hostesses, including sight-seeing to local points of interest and a group buffet supper on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. van Zander in Carmel Valley.

A number of foreign countries were represented among the guests.

Miss Gertrude Rendtorff of Carmel was hostess to Mr. and Mrs. Gunter Koch, both students in linguistics from Germany. Charles Goldfinger, an architect from France, with Mrs. Goldfinger was entertained by Mrs. Joyce Stevens of Carmel.

Also in Carmel, Mrs. Charles Kasch and Mrs. Glen Watson entertained Michele Charles, a student in business administration from France.

A number of AAUW members in Pebble Beach were hostesses to members of the visiting group. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Cureton entertained Mr. and Mrs. Ezzat Gomaa—a former petroleum engineer from Egypt—while Mr. and Mrs. Jean Kretzschmar were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Craig Comstock. Mr. Kretzschmar is an electrical engineer from Belgium.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bower werre host and hostess to Mr. and Mrs. Jean Le Tallec, the former a naval architect from France. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McCaig, Mr. Lionel Bordarier, a civil engineer from France, was the weekend guest.

WRITER VISITS

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Campbell of Carmel had as their recent house guest the writer and poet Janet Lewis, a frequent visitor to the Village.

Miss Lewis will conduct a creative writing workshop for 10 days beginning Feb. 1, at Yosemite. Widow of the late Yvor Winters, a professor at Stanford, she also has taught creative writing at that university.

FIRST GIRL

It's exciting enough getting to be a grandmother for the first time, but for the baby to be the first girl on grandpa's side in three generations --

"I can't pass a single baby shop that has little girls' things showing!" declared deliriously happy Fran Harvey of Pebble Beach. Her husband, Brig. Gen. C.C. Harvey vows he doesn't feel like a grandfather -- but doesn't mind being married to a grandmother, because she doesn't look like one!

Tiny Amy Christine, who weighed only 5½ pounds on her January 8 birthdate, was born to the Harveys' middle son, 1st Lt. David D. Harvey and their daughter-in-law Adrian, in Nuernberg, Germany.

At that distance, even though Fran and Clint "can hardly wait", it takes some planning. So the new grandparents will first attend the West Point graduation of their youngest son, Bob -- third Harvey son to graduate from the Military Academy as did their father -- on June 9. From there they'll go to Europe for the summer.

They plan to go to Germany to visit, do some other continental touring, and hopefully, take Adrian and little Amy on a trip to Mallorca.

Incidentally, the new baby's great-grandmother, Mrs. C.C. Harvey, Sr., of Canterbury Woods, with two sons and three grandsons, optimistically bought a string of pearls "for my first great-granddaughter" -- 10 years ago!

MORE ON CARDS

Mrs. Helen Buckman phoned in response to Pine Needles mention of disposition of used greeting cards, and said she makes scrap books of the bright pictures for children's hospitals and hospital wards.

She can use cards of all seasons and occasions, and expecially likes pictures of ships, animals, flowers, scenery, children, Thanksgiving scenes and objects, cars, almost everything small children enjoy.

created eight picture books of cards for Shrine Hospital in San Francisco. She hopes now to make additional ones for Ming Quong Home in Los Gatos, a school for children from broken homes.

Mrs. Buckman may be reached at 624-5947.

ZONTA BENEFIT

The Annual Monte Carlo Night sponsored by the Zonta Club of the Monterey Peninsula will be held at Rancho Del Monte Club in Carmel Valley Saturday, Feb. 6.

Music for dancing will begin at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Robert Smith and Mrs. Robert W. Tod, co-chairmen, said there will also be refreshments, games and prizes. Donation is $3.50 per person, and all sale proceeds will be donated through the Zonta Club to charitable organizations on the Peninsula.

NEWCOMERS

A small Carmel boy and a small Pebble Beach girl joined the local population last week. The son born to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ericksen of Carmel on Jan. 14 has been named Kyle Edvard. He has a big sister, Kindra, 2½ years old.

The daughter added to the family of Dr. and Mrs. Nathan Barrett of Pebble Beach is Victoria Ann, born Jan. 15.

SUNDAY BIRTHDAY

Dr. Iona Logie entertained Sunday evening at a birthday dinner honoring her sister-in-law Yoshiko, Mrs. Marc J. Logie.

CHESS MEN

Two Carmel men recently were elected to office in the Monterey Peninsula Chess Club. Charles O. Nystrom was named president, while Ron Atkinson became tournament director.

The club, to which other Carmelites also belong, is sponsored by the Monterey Park and Recreation department. It meets at 7:30 p.m. each Thursday at the Casa Alvarado Chess Center, 467 Alvarado street, Monterey.

VISION CARE

BY DR. R.E. MARLIN
(consulting optometrist)

Q: Can contact lenses reduce one's prescription?

A: Yes, in many cases through the practice of orthokeratology. This is the gradual reshaping of the cornea by progressive changes of the contact lenses toward zero prescription. Most corneas will change shape, but not always to zero correction. The lower the correction and the earlier the age the better. In my own case, starting at age 28, my correction has been reduced 50 percent and stopped. Even this is a big help when I'm not wearing my contact lenses. Send in your questions.

Club to hear concert by John Mayhew

John Mayhew, pianist, will appear before members and guests of the Carmel Woman's Club on Monday at 2 p.m. at their clubhouse. Mr. Mayhew was a pupil of Hungarian virtuoso Gyorgy Sandor and Emanuel Bey, sole accompanist for Jascha Heifetz for twenty years. He makes his home in Santa Clara Valley where he has performed in concert in numerous churches and at the San Jose Women's Club.

His selections will include Arabeske in C Major by Robert Schumann; Concerto In The Italian Style - by Johann Sebastian Bach (Allegro Animato, Andante Molto Espressivo, Presto Gioioso); Nocturne in D Flat Major by Frederic Chopin; Liebestraume in A Flat Major by Franz Liszt; and Balade in G Minor by Frederic Chopin.

Pouring following the program will be Mmes. William Holzhauer, Trygve Johnsen, Fred M. Naber and Miss Gretchen Wahl.

PARTY FOR P.G. ART MUSEUM

A "Let's Get Acquainted With Our New Pacific Grove Art Center" party was held yesterday, gathering a full house of art lovers and loyal supporters at 568 Lighthouse Ave.

Mrs. Earl M. Carminati and members of the Guild served coffee and pastries to members and their guests.

Mrs. Eliott Brown of Pebble Beach is president of the Art Center. Don Ostergard of Pebble Beach is chairman of the membership committee. His co-chairman is Mrs. Carminati.

The membership committee is planning a series of events to increase membership and to insure continued growth and development.

A preview reception to see the Memorial Exhibition of Harold Landaker's painting will be held on Feb. 5 from 7 to 9 p.m.

Common-sense rules for bicycle safety suggested by River School principal DIRCK AND Jan dismount to cross an Ocean Avenue intersection.

A set of rules for bicyclists, prompted by reports of unsafe riding by River School students, was compiled recently by Principal Fred Pitts with the help of Police Chief Clyde Klaumann.

"Every time a youngster rides a bike on a public street he faces all the hazards and pitfalls that await the average motorist," states the preface.

"And, though it may not have been clear before, he also accepts all the responsibilities and duties of the motorist."

The rules suggest the following:

DON'T: Ride double.

DON'T: Leave your bicycle unlocked.

DON'T: Ride through traffic signals, against red lights.

DON'T: Ride through boulevard stops. Always stop.

DON'T: Ride or park your bicycle on the sidewalk.

DON'T: Ride out of alleyways until you have slowed and looked both ways.

DON'T: Try to beat an automobile across an intersection as you may lose.

DON'T: Ride your bicycle at night unless you have a headlight that can be seen for 300 feet and a tail-light reflector that can be seen for 300 feet.

DON'T: Neglect to see that the number on your identification card corresponds with your license plate number.

The fact that bicycle riding does carry heavy responsibility has been emphasized by the State Legislature which added an entire section dealing with cyclists to the California Vehicle Code. Each section is designed to eliminate an action which has proven hazardous to bicyclists in the past. One section deals with everything that a careful rider would already have eliminated from his riding habits. The law clarifies and makes violations of several hazardous practices which previously were simply unsafe.

Perhaps most important is the section requiring riders to stay as near the right side of the roadway as possible but not on the sidewalk. This section prohibits riding on the left hand side of the street and riding in the center of the traffic lane. Riders also are warned to exercise caution in passing vehicles.

Also of great importance is the provision that bicycle ridersmust have at least one hand free at all times to grip the handle bars. This section eliminates the practicice of carrying anything that occupies both arms so that the rider has no control over the steering mechanism.

Another provision prohibits a bicycle rider from attaching himself or his bike to any other vehicle on the road. Bicycle alterations, some of which possess a great potential hazard, also are covered by the law.

No bicyele may be altered so that the pedal at its lowest point is more than twelve inches off the ground.

The handle bars may not be raised above the rider's shoulder level.

The rider must sit in a permanent regular seat attached to the bike. He may not carry a passenger on the handle bars.

Equipment requirements also were set forth. A bike must have a brake capable of making one braked wheel skid on dry, clean, level pavement.

For operation during darkness, bikes are required to have a California Highway Patrol approved red reflector on the rear capable of being seen from 300 feet. Retained in the law was a previous requirement that bicycles be equipped with a white lamp on the front

BICYCLISTS ARE expected to observe many rules of the road applicable to automobiles, including signalling for a turn.

AN IDENTIFICATION tag is required for bicycles, explains Officer Morris Singeltary.

RIDING WITH no hands, while definitely a feat of skill, is not a safe practice.

COMMON SENSE requires a bicyclist halt at the end of a blind alley before entering the street.

Bicycle safety . . .

which can be seen 300 feet. Optional equipment is a red lamp on the rear. It is unlawful to operate a bicycle on any street in Carmel unless the bicycle is registered and tagged. The Carmel Police Department also extends the registration and tagging courtesy to outlying areas on a voluntary basis. The fee of 25c does not even begin to cover the cost of registering and licensing. Bicycles in unsafe mechanical condition will not be registered.

Students should avoid riding across busy intersections such as Ocean and San Carlos and busy streets elsewhere in our city. They are reminded to dismount and walk across.

The law provides that bicycle riders have all the rights of drivers and are subject to the duties of drivers - except those rights which by their nature cannot have application.

DIRCK SELVIG and Jan Garrison, River School graduates, release the combination lock they use when leaving their bicycles unattended.

CHRISTMAS STAMPS

The precancelled 1970 Christmas Stamp will not be considered as valid postage for mail postage after Jan. 31, according to William P. Woolsey, assistant postmaster in charge of the Carmel post office.

Woolsey said that individuals with 1970 Christmas stamps on hand after this date may exchange them for regular six-cent postage stamps.

WOMEN'S CLUB

Miss Jane Nichols, at the request of the Carmel Women's Club, will return to Carmel Feb. 14 at 3 p.m. at the Clubhouse, Ninth and San Carlos, for a special performance entitled "Sweethearts of Broadway."

Miss Nichols has performed in the San Francisco and Los Angeles Civic Light Opera Companies and as Eliza Doolittle in the San Jose Light Opera production of "My Fair Lady."

She is well known in the Bay Area also for her work on radio and television.

Miss Nichols will again be accompanied by Ferne Hammond.

A Valentine tea will be served by the Board members.

Seating is limited. Furhter information may be obtained by calling 624-8117.

PARTY PLANS . . .

BY PHYLLIS JERVEY

The opinion of most gourmets is that men are more adventurous cooks than women. We believe this to be true, and give as an outstanding example, a firmly devoted Carmel resident. Now teaching in a Southern California college, Clifton Hazard visits Carmel whenever possible. Known to close friends as "Hap", this genial and witty bachelor recently prepared a "Russian" supper at the Carmel Casanova Casa of "Party Plans".

Reminiscent of Russian-surrounded Berlin, Germany, it was great fun to recall those exciting times when we were both there. Our commanding general advised us to "lead a normal life in an abnormal place" which we proceeded to do with alacrity. Parties, parties. Some very formal with the British and French military and diplomatic missions, but the ones we enjoyed most were when the kitchen staff took the evening off. This chance to "do-it-ourselves" was a joy. Each week our own special group cooked with freedom, imagination and verve.

Hap Hazard studied Russian at Monterey Presidio's Defense Language Institute and occupied a guest house in Carmel which he has never forgotten. Knowing Russian was a life-saver for our American officer when he was made the official guardian of two Russian pilots who defected to the U.S. Zone in Germany. The Russians knew only their own language.

Conversation invariably included questions about Russian versus American dishes. Out of this fund of information, Hap today prefers a mixture of both. A simply delicious supper is the following inspired by head-chef Hap.

Jellied Borscht
Beef Stroganov on Rice
Russian Tea Paskha

Vodka mixed with canned consomme and sparked with Worchester and-or Tabasco gave zest to our independence from watchful domestics.

JELLIED BORSCHT

2 cans consomme
2 tbsp. unflavored gelatin
2 cups canned shredded beets with juices
Salt, Pepper
1 cup hot red wine
Tomato ketchup, lemon juice
Onion juice
Sour crean, BLACK CAVIAR

Soak gelatin in a bit of fresh lemon and onion juice. Stir until dissolved. Add heated consomme (undiluted) and dry red wine. Add finely chopped beets, and enough juice to color a bright red. Add about 4 tbsp. ketchup or chili sauce. Season to taste. Blend well. Chill until very firm.

When ready to serve, break up the jellied borscht lightly with a silver fork. Place in individual glass punch cups. Pass sour cream in a small bowl for individual service. In separate bowls, have chopped chives and, of course, CAVIAR.

Chopped cooked unpeeled eggplant, mixed with a tart vinegar-oil dressing, chilled, remotely resembles caviar (Red or Romano) although the Russian pilots shuddered at the thought. This amount should serve six timid appetites, but we've found this combination is so soothing, humid hot weather in the summer or before a roaring fire on the hearth, that a good supply should be on hand come rain or shine in Carmel.

BEEF STROGANOFF WITH RICE

3 large onions, thinly sliced
2 lbs. lean beef (the BEST)
3 garlic cloves, mashed
2 small cans tomato puree
2 cups buttermilk
2 tbsp. butter
1 can beef broth
2 tbsp. each oil and cornstarch
2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
Ring of white hot rice

Fry the onion and garlic in butter. Drain, leaving butter to which add oil. Saute the meat quickly into this. No burning! Smooth cornstarch into beef broth, add tomato paste, mushrooms and seasonings. Simmer carefully until meat is tender. At last moment add buttermilk or sour cream. Never permit to curdle, even though Hap is playing "Come Home Bill Bailey" on the Berlin Baron's grand piano in the music salon. Serve or throw into a ring of hot rice. Not the piano!

There were some other innovations at these "Outpost Parties", when the Russians would jam the radio tower, turn off communications, electricity and other cunning devices. An almost cooked U.S.A. commissary leg of lamb from home was hurried to the British Sector and popped into their, as yet, still-going oven ... Result? The U.S. lamb was enjoyed by British officers, mostly hungry bachelors. Where have all those bachelors gone, Carmel's lonely ladies ask? Those who can still remember.

Another time we wanted to "despedida" an undercover guy, who was about to fly to Acapulco from Berlin for a breather. A Mexican party was quickly assembled. But what about guacamole? Not an avocado in sight. Have you ever taken a package of frozen green peas, thawed them, pureed them, added appropriate seasonings and called the salad that ensued "Viva Mexico"? We often starved for real American corn. Some of us tried to raise those sweet ears, but they always turned out to be embryo. So, Hap and our gang, roasted U.S. frozen corn, splashed them with peanut butter while hot. How they disappeared with Liebefraumilch!

CARMEL HOST LIONS CLUB

At this week's meeting, we enjoyed the hospitality of president and Mrs. Don Nelson for our monthly Board Meeting. When faced with chocolate cake, all of us put our diet plans behind us!

Considerable discussion developed relating to our own club's problems and those of its associates. We do have a few problems and all can be worked out if we apply ourselves.

At our Feb. 9 meeting Lion Jerry and our pin-up girl Sioux Scott will reveal to us, through pictures and words, what they did in their pre-Xmas U.S.O. trip to our servicemen in South Vietnam and vicinity.

On Feb. 16 our speaker will be a representative of the local Little League to which we lend support. We feel our lads could use us as rooters as well as sponsors!

On Feb. 19 we will put on a Flag Day program for the second graders at Wood School. (School will be out June 14, the generally recognized Flag Day. Similar programs will be put on by other Lion Clubs).

On Mar. 3 we will sponsor our club's Student Speakers Contest at Brey Hall, Carmel High School at 7:30 p.m. The subject will be "Should Youth Become Involved? How and When?" Carmel High and Robert Louis Stevenson representatives will compete on a winner-take-all basis. The winner will go on to the second of seven possible elimination contests at the Multiple District 4 (California-Nevada) level. The winner will receive a $2000 college or university scholarship.

Do cats need collars?

We often ask ourselves that question, because there is a very real danger in putting anything around the neck of a cat. Since cats are inveterate climbers and jumpers with a strong tendency to get themselves into trouble, we feel that collars really are a moot point.

The problem with the outdoor cat and the collar is one of the collar catching on a tree branch or bush and strangling or hanging the cat. The same problems exist for the indoor cat, although his collar won't get caught on a tree; but it can snag on a drawer pull or a broomstick or a hook – on just about anything you aren't ready for.

If you have a kitten you are planning to train to walk on a leash, we feel that the collar and leash should be kept off the cat until it's time to train. You can buckle on the collar just before you set out for a walk; there's really no need for him to wear a collar indoors.

A collar worn for identification purposes, with an address tag attached, may indicate to potential "adoptors" that this cat belongs to someone. But the tag dangling from the collar provides a greater danger of catching and choking the cat.

The solution to the I.D. problem may be to have a flat metal tag [illegible] with your name and address and then riveted to the leather of the collar rather than hanging from a hook. This way, it can't catch on anything.

The third use for a collar is flea prevention. Many of the flea collars intended for cats are "break-away" types, with an elastic insert that gives enough to enable the collar to slip over the cat's ears if it becomes caught on something. Even the plastic flea collars are now being made so that they can slip loose in an emergency.

Flea collars should never be adjusted too tightly lest the insecticide burn the skin on the animal's neck. On the other hand, they shouldn't be too loose, as that makes it easier for the collar to catch on an object. Adjust flea collars so that you can slip two fingers between the collar and the cat's neck.

An indoor cat who is not likely to get fleas or be stolen really doesn't need a collar at all. Granted, there is something exotic about the big black cat we know who wears a gold mesh collar, or the Siamese on the TV ads who wears a rhinestone "choker", but these adornments are really unnecessary, except to please the owner's vanity. The cat would probably be happier without the necklace.

If you feel that your cat needs a collar, for identification or flea protection, be careful when you first put one on the cat.

Cats are remarkably sinuous, able to twist and contort into impossible positions. Most cats will object to the collar until they become accustomed to it and will try to paw, chew or rub it off.

One of the dangers of a collar being too lose is that the cat may succeed in hooking it over his lower jaw and teeth and be unable to free himself. If you watch your cat grooming his chest, you will see how he can accomplish this.

If the collar becomes hooked over his jaw, he will probably panic. The collar will tighten on his neck as he struggles to free himself and may cut his mouth. He may fling himself about uncontrollably, thrashing and clawing at the collar.

If you are lucky enough to be at home should this occur, act swiftly. Grab a heavy towel, throw it over the cat to protect yourself from his claws and cut off the collar with a knife or pair of scissors. You won't be able to unbuckle it easily because it will be drawn tight and the buckle may be in the cat's mouth. Don't worry about ruining the collar; better the collar than the cat.

Of course, prevention is better than cure in this case. Make sure the collar is not loose enough to reach the cat's lower jaw and he won't be able to hook himself. And keep an eye on any cat wearing a collar for the first few days.

HAIRBALLS are the penalty a cat pays for being so fastidious. As the cat licks himself, of necessity he swallows some loose hairs. Depending on the cat and on his hair, this can be insignificant or troublesome.

A hairball is a felt-like mat of swallowed hair. They form in the cat's stomach and digestive tract and can cause constipation or more serious intestinal blockages.

The longer the cat's hair, the more severe the hairball problem. Persian-type cats really can't cope with their long, silky coats. They need human assistance in grooming.

The best prevention against hairballs is a regular daily brushing and combing of the cat's coat. For short-haired cats, a stiff bristle brush will work well; longer-haired cats will need to be combed as well. The cat will soon learn to enjoy the attention you're giving him as well as the pleasurable sensation of being brushed.

In addition, giving the cat a lubricant in the form of butter, bacon drippings, white petroleum jelly or a special preparation available in pet shops, will do much to prevent hairballs from becoming a problem.

A teaspoon of any of the above will facilitate passage of accumulated hair through the cat. You can let the cat lick the lubricant from your fingers or a spoon, or dab it on his paws or lips which will cause him to lick them clean.

Vega wins Motor Trend's Car of the Year Award

The 1971 Vega 2300, Chevrolet's new entry in the mini-car market, today received Motor Trend Magazine's 16th annual Car of the Year award.

Selected over nine other of America's best new automobiles by the CARS (Conference of Automotive Research Specialists) and the editors of Motor Trend, the Vega earned the coveted award on the basis of engineering excellence, packaging, styling and marketing concepts.

"Vega fulfills the automotive buying public's desire for a more basic approach to transportation," said Eric Dahlquist, editor of Motor Trend. "And, for the money, no other American car can deliver more than the Vega line.

"The importance of fresh marketing techniques in the American auto industry is reflected by Chevrolet offering the Vega in a stylish coupe, a notchback sedan, a wagon and a panel delivery. They caught their mini-car opposition flat-footed," Dahlquist added.

John Z DeLorean, vice president of General Motors and general manager of Chevrolet, was presented the Car of the Year golden caliphers trophy by Motor Trend editor Dahlquist during the National Automobile Dealers Association convention being held here at the San Francisco Hilton Hotel.

Upon receiving the trophy, DeLorean said it was especially gratifying to Chevrolet engineers who brought the Vega into being in less than two years.

"To compete successfully in the small car market or against the imports you have to have a product that does everything well," DeLorean said. "This award reaffirms our belief that the Vega provides an excellent combination of the really desirable elements that one looks for in a car."

Automotive divisions of General Motors have won the important Car of the Year award four times in the past eight years.

The Vega's trip from drawing board to production reality will be featured in the February issue of Motor Trend on sale February 2. The January issue carries complete road tests on the vega.

Remember When?

10 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Jan. 26, 1961:

Paintings by Carolyn Bishop of Carmel Woods will be on display at the Discovery Gallery, 260 Calle Principal, Monterey, through February 9.

Carmel High School students elected new officers Friday. Bruce Bennett is student body president for the coming semester; Page van Loben Sels, vice president; Jean Roeder, secretary.

Jana Miles, now a United Air Lines stewardess on flights out of Chicago, came home this week to visit her mother, Mrs. Dexter Whitcomb, and Dr. Whitcomb.

Mrs. Helen Lightner Dean, owner and manager of the Cinderella Shop, says that to the best of her knowledge no other stores but a few selling groceries and general items were in existence when the late Janet Prentiss came from New England and opened the Cinderella.

A card from Lance and Adele Detroit reports they are living in their trailer home at Apache Junction, with Mecca, Arizona, their postal address.

Members of the Carmel American Legion Post No. 512 headed by James Kelsey collected more than $200 last weekend during their fourth annual Mile of Dimes March on Ocean Avenue.

25 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Jan. 25, 1946:

"I came to California for my health and spent the first three days in bed with the influenza."

George Henry Southwell, Canadian artist, is here visiting his daughter, Mrs. Lee Randolph.

Mayor P.A. McCreery is mad as all get-out. Not only are people calling him up and writing indignant letters to him because they do not see eye to eye with him on his cancelling John Roscelli's garbage contract, but they are asking pertinent and pointed questions.

Virginia Nielson gave a demonstration of Flower Arranging last Friday at the meeting of the Garden Section of the Carmel Woman's Club.

The Carmel Women's Democratic Club will meet Friday, February 2, at the home of Mrs. Ernest Leffingwell, northwest corner of Eighth and Lincoln.

Georg Grunberg, internationally known pianist and teacher, is planning to visit Carmel twice a month to accomodate a limited number of advanced piano students.

50 YEARS AGO:

From the Pine Cone, Jan. 27, 1921:

Miss Virginia Brinton, one of Carmel's most estimable young ladies,, passed away last Sunday morning, after an illness of about three weeks.

Miss Margaret Clark is spending this week visiting friends in Oakland, and her mother leaves shortly for a visit to San Francisco.

Work has been started on the Hooper cottage in the south end, so that the family may occupy it in a short time.

Each day at noon the back-room diners at Curtis' have a roll call. There are mighty few late-comers or absentees.

Rev. Fred Sheldon gave a spelendid illustrated lecture on South America at the Methodist Church last Sunday evening. There was a large attendance. His next lecture will be on Panama.

Mrs. W.S. Johns, who has been the guest of the Crockers at Belvidere, is spending a few days in Carmel.

A fine little outrigger canoe is soon to sail the Carmel River. It was brought from Honolulu, and is the property of Edward G. Kuster.

Stewart new Guitar Shop owner

William and Natalie Stewart are the new owners of the Guitar Shop in Pantiles Court on Dolores near Fifth. The Stewarts, both elementary teachers in Monterey schools, took over operation of the shop from Ivan Maracle this month and will be open for business this weekend.

"The shop, known all over the country, has been very successful, so we won't make any substantial changes in its operation," Mr. Stewart said. "It makes me very happy to get into something I really enjoy."

The Stewarts, who have taught school for some 20 years, are from Waukegan, Ill. They will operate the shop with the help of their five children and Bob Jacobs, a guitar and recorder teacher.

The Stewart children are Deborah, a pre-med student at MPC: Geoff, 17, who will also give guitar lessons at the shop; Mary, 16; Alison, 13; and Jane, 11. "Everyone in the family is musical except me," exclaims Mrs. Stewart.

Classical guitars in a wide price range are on sale at the shop, as well as recorders and allied products. Guitar instruction has always been a part of the shop since it was founded some 13 years ago by Terry Brodsley.

Mr. Stewart also taught guitar in studios in Chicago and the North Shore area. He is a member of the Guitar Society, has been associated with music most of his life, and is familiar with the shop as both customers and friends of the instrument, he said.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons having any interest in the matter that the Planning Commission of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, will conduct a Public Hearing in the City Council Chambers of said City on Wednesday, February 17, 1971, at the hour of 4:00 o'clock p.m. or as soon thereafter as interested persons may be heard:

To consider an Ordinance entitled: "An Ordinance Limiting the Size of Commercial Structures".

That said ordinance being proposed amends Municipal Code Section 1304.1.1 and reads as follows: (new portions are underscored)

1304.1.1 GENERAL PURPOSE. The City reaffirms that it is essentially and predominantly a residential City with a small commercial district noted for its village character. Desiring to retain its unique character and to avoid out-of-scale commercial developments the following regulations shall apply.

a. PRELIMINARY LAND DEVELOPMENT APPROVAL FOR BUILDING SITE IN EXCESS OF 12,000 SQ. FT.: For the development of any building site in excess of 12,000 square feet, the owner or developer shall submit to the Planning Commission a preliminary presentation of the land use concept of the proposed site development for review, prior to normal application for Building and Site Development. It is the purpose of this section to encourage communication between the development and the Planning Commission before the developer devotes excessive time or expenses to the project.

b. BUILDING SITE COVERAGE. On building sites in excess of 12,000 square feet, no commercial structure, exclusive of areas devoted primarily to underground parking, shall exceed 10,000 square feet of ground coverage. No interaccessibility between structures shall be allowed if to do so would create a structure in excess of 10,000 square feet of ground coverage.

c. BUILDING COVERAGE. Shall not exceed 85 percent of the area of any building site.

d. BUILDING HEIGHT. Maximum - 30 feet, 2 stories. Board of Adjustments may grant as exception not to exceed 30 percent for a pitched roof or where special topography justifies, or for the housing of special communication, utility or service facilities.

e. SETBACK-FRONT YARD. Minimum -- none required except: site abutting R district, then 7½ feet, or across street from R district, then 5 feet and as required by sub-section 1304.1.5.

f. SETBACK-SIDE YARD. Interior side lines - none required except when abutting R district, then 10 feet plus 1 foot for each 3 feet of structure above 12 feet.

g. SETBACK - ALONG SIDE STREET: - none required except when across street from R district, then 5 feet.

h. SETBACK – REAR YARD: - none required except when abutting R district, then 10 feet plus 1 foot for each foot of structure above 12 feet.

i. GENERAL NOTE: If any other codes in effect in Carmel are in conflict with these provisions, the more restrictive code shall apply.

Section 2. That Section 1304.1.5 is amended to require that any area to be credited to the required open spaces of that section shall have a minimum dimension on any side of not less than three (3) feet, (rather than two (2) feet.)

Jim McKibbin now partner in Grissim men's store

"I like walking to work," says Jim McKibbin, standing behind the counter at the John Grissim patio shop. The counter, from the old Steinbeck home, has a mirror set at a perfect height for judging the break of a trouser cuff.

McKibbin drove 32,000 miles a year as district sales manager for Prince Gardner leather before buying 50 percent of Grissim's business.

He drove for about 10 years, first out of Los Angeles and recently San Francisco.

"I just got tired of the freeways, the traffic, trying to find a parking place, the lack of courtesy and service at the department stores," McKibbin said.

So he and his wife Rosemary decided to settle in Carmel.

"It's a nice spot in the road, I guess," he said. "Really, Rosemary and I began visiting Carmel and fell in love with the place."

Part of the village's charm for McKibbin is the "relaxed atmosphere".

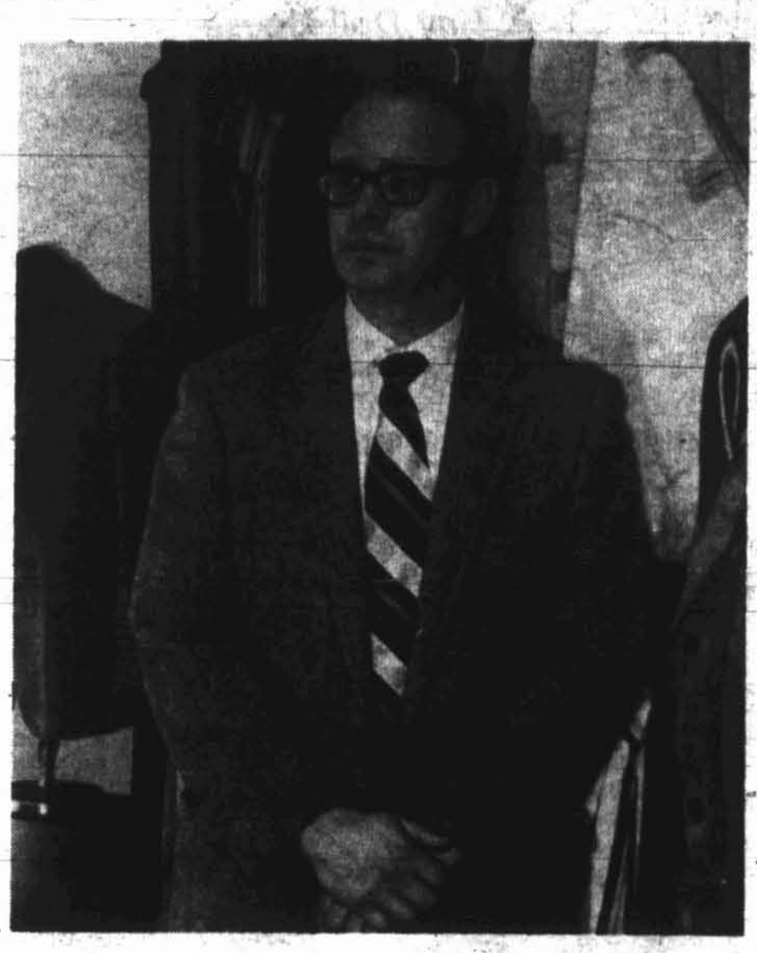
Another point is the proximity of fine golf courses. McKibbin has an 11 handicap.

"Really, it's about 13 now," he said. "I haven't been playing too much."

The McKibbins have bought a home at Lincoln and Ninth.

Mrs. McKibbin works part-time at the Ocean Avenue Grissim shop.

Their daughter, Ellen, a junior at the University of Southern California, recently married Jim Grady, a senior at UCLA.



JIM McGIBBIN

McKibbin worked for several months at Kramer's of Carmel, a women's clothes shop, before joining Grissim's.

"I'm glad to get back on the selling floor," he says. "Selling men's clothes is much more interesting than selling women's. I can help men more."

McKibbin splits all shop duties with John Grissim: buying, selling and paperwork, of which there is a "tremendous" amount.

"I like John's operation, the direction he's going," says McKibbin. "I think the main thing, people wonder if the place is going to change – it's not."

McKibbin, dressed in a conservative grey suit with a pin-striped shirt and dark, paisley tie, describes Grissim's as a "down-the-middle-of-the-road, conservative house."

As a leather expert, he approves of the shop's continuing emphasis on leather clothes.

"John has scoured the world to locate the finest suedes," he says. "All of suedes are from Sweden. The styling and construction is the best you can get."
